Dedication

This is dedicated to the Jarvis families that came before us.

This volume begins after the Civil War and follows our Jarvis families through the end of World War I. In 1865 the Civil War was over. Three generations of Jarvises lived in southeast Indiana – Harvey and Sarah, Joseph and Martha, and Newton. By the early 1910s, these generations had died out.

There remained Jarvis families in Indiana, but our next generation, Ralph Jarvis, came west to Kansas. By the end of World War I, Ralph would marry and set down roots in Kansas.

This volume is also dedicated to two technological wonders of this era.

- 1. This is the first volume in which we have photographs of our grandparents! That adds a wonderful new dimension to our memories of them.*
- 2. The electric light illuminated homes and lives! Our grandparent Ralph Jarvis worked in this new industry, and it brought him to Kansas and his future wife.*

As always, this book is dedicated to the Jarvis families that come after us. I hope this look at our past helps them appreciate their heritage.

There's a little bit of each of those ancestors in us. Let's appreciate their message to us.

"What you are, we were. What we are, you will be."

Acknowledgments

My son Joe sparked my interest in genealogy.

He began the research of our family history. He began building our Ancestry tree that today records more than 6,000 people.

Joe took the first DNA tests, and patiently tried to explain the technicalities to me. He painstakingly matched his DNA results with that of Eric Jervis, which was the key to finding our ancestors in England.

After I retired and devoted more time to genealogy, we often collaborated or reviewed each other's research.

I've drawn on this trove of research in writing this book. Thank you, Joe.

Reconstruction 1865-1877

The decade after the war was the Reconstruction era. But that optimistic term defied the reality that there were both winners and losers.

Two generations of Jarvis families were living in southeast Indiana. How did they fare?

The Reconstruction Era was a period of government actions to re-integrate the confederate states into the Union and deal with four million newly-freed blacks. But government action wasn't all. The South was beginning a climate of oppression of freed blacks.

Northern states were dealing with the profound changes brought on by the war. Many had prospered in the war economy. But some areas were not enjoying the economic expansion.

In Indiana, Indianapolis and the northern part of the state entered a period of economic prosperity. Southern Indiana's economy was diminished as railroads replaced Ohio River commerce. In Jefferson County, where the Jarvises lived, the economy tanked.

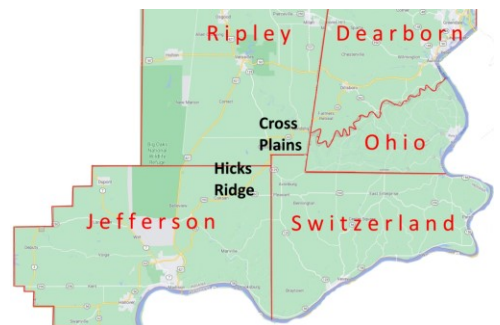

The county fell into economic decline after the American Civil War, as industry began to shift from southern Indiana to the northern part of the state.

Harvey and Sarah Jarvis (4G)

In 1860, Harvey and Sarah were living on Johnson Watt's farm in Dearborn County. After the war, in April 1868, they purchased 20 acres at Hicks Ridge in Shelby Township and moved back to Jefferson County. Harvey and Sarah were age 65.

Family Nibbles

Jarvis families – late 1860s to mid-1870s

This was near where they had lived earlier in the 1850s, and near where several of their sons were living. James, Joseph, and Lafayette and their families were living nearby.

Son William was living just east of Cross Plains, next to his cousins Harvey, Jr. and John. That was about five miles away.

Son Milton and his family were living on the same farm with Harvey and Sarah.

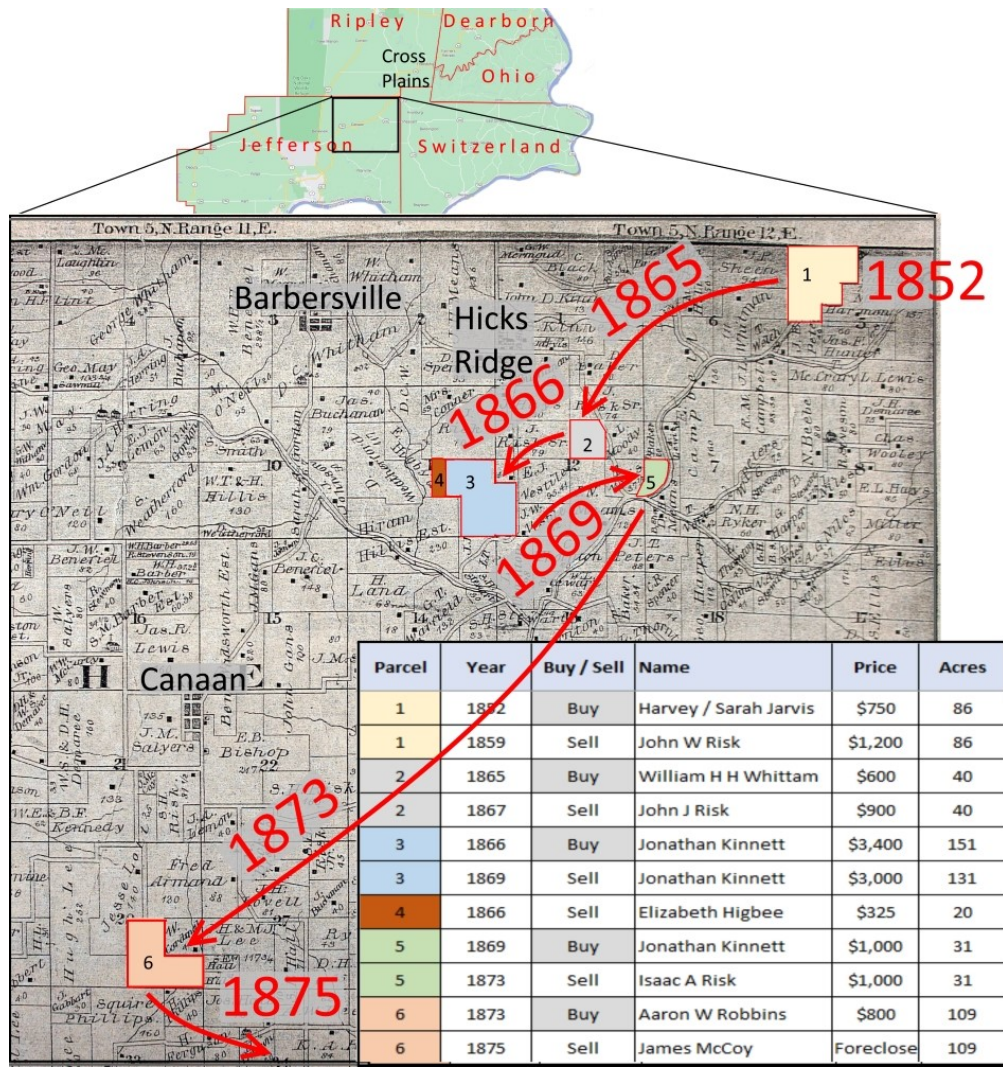

This decade seems like a period of stability for the Jarvis families.

Joseph and Martha Jarvis (3G)

After the war, Joseph and Martha bought and sold several farms, all in Shelby Township, Jefferson County. From 1865 to 1875, they moved five times.

They were living near their extended families, Joseph near his parents and three brothers. Martha was living near her many Buchanan relatives.

From farm to farm

Their 1866 farm (No. 3 on map) was large – 131 acres. Unlike their earlier “difficult” farm, all these farms look arable. It seems Joseph was trying to make a go as a farmer instead of relying on income as a mason.

Whatever the case, they moved and bought and sold land frequently.

Their last farm (No. 6 on map) was a joint venture, bought in 1873 by Joseph and Martha (2/3 share) and Moses and Elizabeth Buchanan (1/3 share). Moses Buchanan was Martha’s brother. Moses was also a brick mason. But they must have intended to make it as farmers. It wasn’t a successful venture because the loan was foreclosed two years later in 1875.

Farmers, who constituted the majority of the population, often saw little benefit in making education a necessity, since schooling seemed to train youth for a future in commercial enterprises rather than farming.

By the late 1870s, some 500,000 pupils annually were enrolled in Indiana's common school system. In 1882 alone, Hoosiers staffed, equipped, and built 499 new schoolhouses.

Reading, math, spelling, and grammar were common subjects. Depending on the talents of the teacher, history or other studies might be offered. Chalk and tablets, instead of costly paper, were the norm for writing lessons.

The children's grandparents Harvey and Sarah lived just a few yards from the school. I'll bet the grandkids visited frequently.

Baptist church

Joseph and Martha were active in their Baptist Church. Milton and Mary Ann Jarvis were too. Probably the other Jarvis families were also members.

The church building was in Hicks Ridge, across the road north from the school, and just past the blacksmith shop from Harvey and Sarah's home.

Here's a brief history of the Center Grove (Hicks Ridge) Baptist Church. Martha Buchanan Jarvis' grandfather Wilson Buchanan had founded the previous church in 1829.

Center Grove was the older name for Hicks Ridge. This church was founded as a Separate Baptist Church (This denomination still exists, but there appear to be no churches closer to the Indian-Kentuck area than Bartholomew Co.) and probably succeeded the Center Baptist Church. A letter dated "Canaan, May 14, 1922" in the records of the Jefferson County Library gives the date of the building of the Center Grove Baptist Church as 1859. The letter was written by John E. Harper.

On April 11, 1860, James and Emeline Risk (daughter of Wilson Buchanan, himself a messenger from the Center Baptist Church) sold a half-acre tract to the Center Grove trustees, William Campbell, William H. Whitham and James M. Campbell, in the NW1/4 SW1/4 Section 1 Twp. 5N Range 11E. (Jefferson Co. Deed Book 18 p. 170.) The 1850 census for Shelby Township shows a Henry Serber, age 40, occupation given as Sep. (probably Separate) Bap. Minister. He could have easily served the Hicks/Center Grove community.

The most thorough listing of members in official records came on June 27, 1874 when Center Grove trustees were elected. On the motion of Joseph Jarvis and M. Cooper, members named John Kerry (or King?) as Judge. Standing for election were James Thornton, Levi Lewis, Robert Lewis, Thomas Baker, Joseph R. Jarvis, Milton Jarvis, Casper Land, Michael Cooper. Elected were Thornton, Levi and Robert Lewis, Baker, Joseph Jarvis. J.J. Fleming was listed as moderator and David Buchanan as clerk (Miscellaneous Records Book 1 p. 291.)

Churches of the Indian-Kentuck Region

Milton Jarvis is Joseph's brother. He and his family were living next door to parents Harvey and Sarah.

Henry Serber was the minister. David Buchanan may have been Martha's father, but certainly a nearby relative.

Reconstruction ended in 1877

Where did things stand in 1877? The Reconstruction Era ended in 1877.

Harvey and Sarah (4G) were both age 74 in 1877. They were living with their son Milton and his family. But a move is in their near future.

In 1877, Joseph was age 47, Martha age 42 (3G). Their joint venture farm with Moses and Elizabeth Buchanan was foreclosed in 1875. They had to vacate by March 1, 1876. What's next for them? A move.

Newton Jarvis (2G) was 22 years old. There's a marriage in his future. And a move.

Nibbles Extra Credit

The end of Reconstruction

There was widespread fraud in the election! In four battleground states, both parties declared their electors victorious. Both candidates declared victory and refused to concede. The conflict resulted in violence and even deaths.

Sound familiar? Yes, but this was the presidential election of 1876. Samuel Tilden won the popular vote over Rutherford Hayes. But in four southern states, each party submitted its own slate of electors. So neither candidate had the 185 electoral votes needed to win.

A truce – not a compromise, but a chance for high-toned gentlemen to retire gracefully from their very civil declarations of war.” By Thomas Nast in Harper’s Weekly, 1877 Feb 17

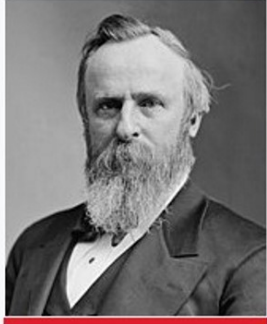

Congress established an Electoral Commission to decide the outcome. While the commission was meeting in late January and February 1877, backroom negotiations were going on. Southern Democrats agreed not to block the victory for Republican Rutherford Hayes in exchange for withdrawal of federal troops from the South and granting home rule to the South.

The commission awarded the four states' votes to Hayes, and he won 185 to 184 in the closest election in US history. Hayes was sworn in on March 5, 1877.

Hayes removed US troops from the southern states, and Reconstruction was over. The Compromise changed the course of southern politics for the next 100 years.

From the late 1870s onward, southern legislatures passed a series of laws requiring the separation of whites from “persons of color” on public transportation, in schools, parks, restaurants, theaters and other locations. Known as the “Jim Crow laws” (after a popular minstrel act developed in the antebellum years), these segregationist statutes governed life in the South through the middle of the next century, ending only after the hard-won successes of the civil rights movement in the 1960s.

An interesting result of this constitutional crisis was the Electoral Count Act of 1887. It was instrumental in the procedures just used in the 2020 presidential election and January 2021 certification of electoral votes.

Congress would eventually enact the Electoral Count Act in 1887 to provide more detailed rules for the counting of electoral votes, especially in cases where multiple slates of electors have been received from a single state.

Long Term Care, Move to Ripley

Harvey and Sarah Jarvis moved a few miles north into Ripley County. But there's a bit more to the story.

Milton T. Jarvis was the youngest child of Harvey and Sarah, born in 1836. He was six years Joseph's junior brother.

Milton married Lima Jane Voris, a neighbor, in 1862. Tragically, Lima Jane died less than a year later, perhaps in childbirth. In July 1864, Milton married Mary Ann Hankins, another neighbor.

Census – Harvey and Sarah Jarvis, Milton and Mary Ann Jarvis – 1870

In 1870, Harvey and Sarah were in their late 60s. Milton and Mary Ann looked after their needs. Harvey and Sarah developed a close relationship and dependence on them, especially on Mary Ann.

1876 – Deed the farm to Mary Ann

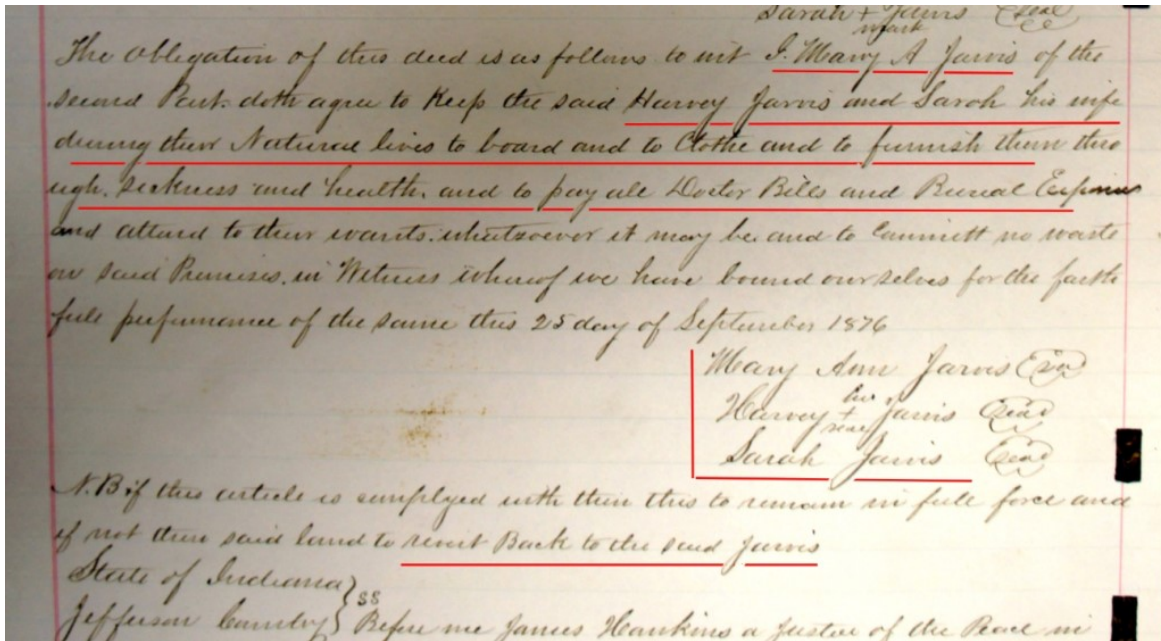

In 1876, Harvey and Sarah deeded their land to Mary Ann in return for lifetime care.

The first part of the deed reads like any other, where Harvey and Sarah Jarvis convey and warrant to Mary A Jarvis the following real estate...

If Mary Ann doesn't meet her obligations, the land goes back to Harvey and Sarah.

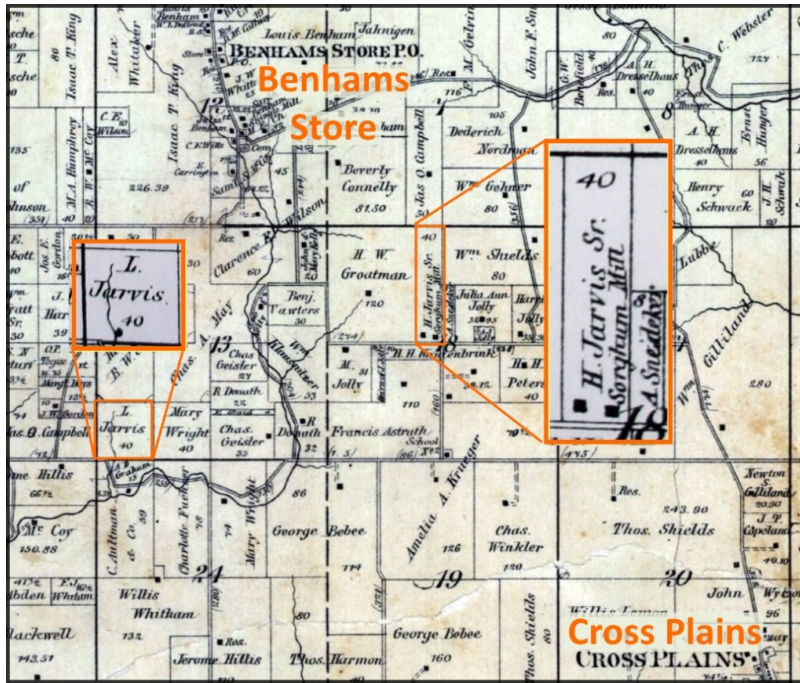

"If this article is complied with then this to remain in full force and if not then said land to remit back to the said Jarvis."

That's progressive long term care insurance. But I'm intrigued that son Milton isn't part of the contract. Just daughter-in-law Mary Ann. Aren't you?

1879 – A move to Ripley County

After the legal wranglings to deed Harvey and Sarah's Jefferson County farm to their daughter-in-law Mary Ann, Harvey and Sarah purchased a 40 acre farm a few miles north in Ripley County in 1879. Milton and Mary Ann and family moved with them.

The farm is midway between Benham's Store and Cross Plains. Notice that Lafayette and Rebecca Jarvis moved too. Their farm is two miles west of Harvey and Sarah's.

The map shows a sorghum mill on Harvey's farm. Maybe Milton and Harvey operated the mill.

Why did they move? I don't know. We don't have the deed, so we don't know if there was any arrangement with Mary Ann and Milton for long-term care. But the record shows the sale from James Lemon to Harvey Jarvis, with no mention of Mary Ann.

What happened to the Jefferson County farm?

After the move to Ripley County, Mary Ann and Milton sold the 20 acre Jefferson County farm to Wallace Connell for $290.

Deed – Mary A and Milton T Jarvis to Wallace Connell – Jefferson County farm – 1879

Did the farm sale end Mary Ann's obligation for long term care? Or is there a new arrangement?

We'll see how it turns out.

Harvey and Sarah Jarvis Died (4G)

Harvey Jarvis died around 1881. He was age 78.

Sarah Robinson Jarvis died around 1883. She was 80.

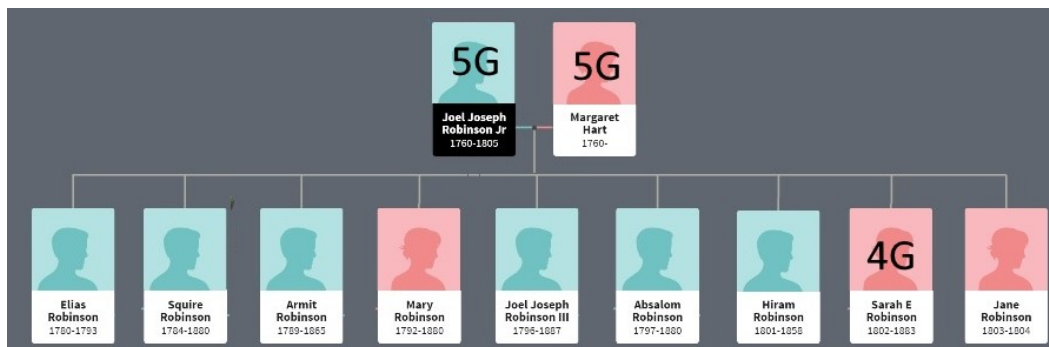

Let's look back at their interesting lives. We'll also see what happened with their long term care arrangement.

Early days in Kentucky

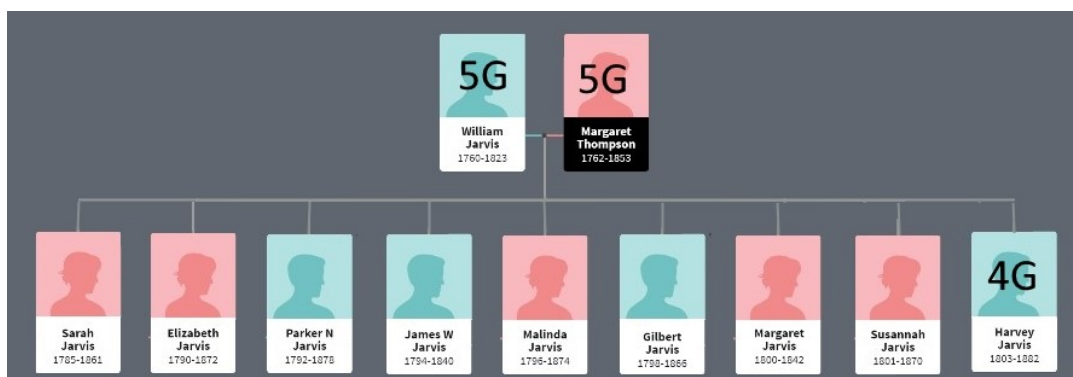

Sarah Elizabeth Robinson was born in Tennessee in 1802. Her nickname was Sallie. Her parents Joel and Margaret Hart Robinson are our 5th great-grandparents.

The family moved to Fork Lick Creek in Pendleton County, Kentucky when Sarah was a child. The Robinsons were an extended family, with several siblings' and cousins' families scattered around southwest Pendleton County.

Joel and Margaret Robinson and children

Harvey Jarvis was born in Pendleton County in 1803. His parents, William and Margaret Thompson Jarvis, had come to Kentucky from Maryland in 1792. Harvey was the youngest of their nine children.

Family Nibbles

Harvey and Sarah grew up in a time and place where a family's food, clothing, and shelter were mostly home grown and homemade. A log house, homespun clothes, a subsistence garden, a crop of corn and some livestock occupied the daily life of all the family members.

Neighbors were important for help, work, and socialization. The bond between Jarvis and Robinson families was no exception. Four of the Robinson children married four of the Jarvis children. And a Robinson was the Methodist preacher at all four weddings. Harvey and Sarah were married in 1822, the last of the four Jarvis/Robinson weddings.

A Move to Indiana

In the 1820s, most of the Jarvis and Robinson families moved to southeast Indiana. Cheap farmland had become available, and new settlers were taking advantage of the opportunity.

By the mid-1820s, Harvey and Sarah moved too, settling near Versailles in Ripley County. For the next six decades, Harvey and Sarah moved between Ripley and Jefferson Counties.

Farming, or masonry work?

Like his father and several brothers, Harvey was a stone and brick mason. Harvey made a living both as a farmer a mason.

Mason? or Farmer?

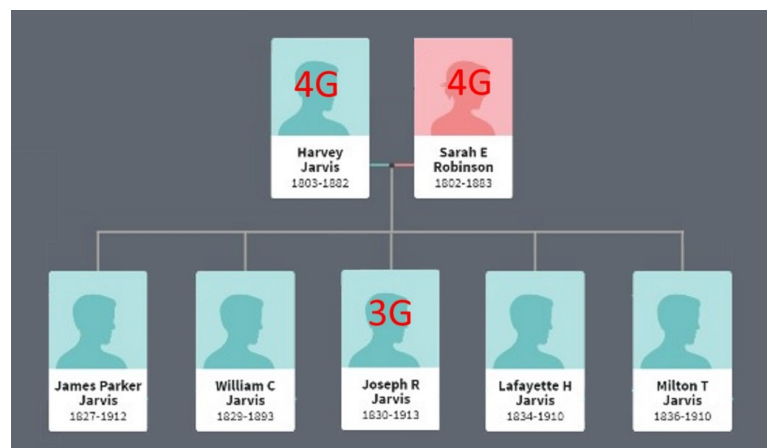

Harvey and Sarah lived on various farms through the years, but it seems like those farms weren't their total livelihood. On various censuses, Harvey is listed as a farmer or a mason.

- In late 1820s they rented a farm near Versailles in their first decade in Indiana
- In 1831 they bought a lot in the town of Versailles, but then sold it
- In 1846 they bought a "difficult" farm in northeast Jefferson County
- In 1852 they sold the "difficult" farm to their son Joseph
- In the 1850s they lived on land of their nephew Gilbert east of Cross Plains
- In 1860 they lived in the household of Johnson Watts, a prominent farmer, businessman, politician
- In 1868 they bought a 20 acre farm in Hicks Ridge

Raising a family

While Harvey was farming or laying brick, Sarah was having children, raising the family, maintaining the household, providing food and clothing, and whatever other household chores were needed.

Harvey and Sarah raised five sons. They had two other children that died in infancy.

Later years

Harvey and Sarah lived well into their 70s. They had a 20 acre farm in Hicks Ridge, Jefferson County. Their son Milton, his wife Mary Ann, and their children lived with Harvey and Sarah. Mary Ann was committed to their care, and they rewarded her by deeding the farm to her in return for the promise of care until they died.

In 1879, Harvey, Sarah, Milton, Mary Ann, and kids all moved to a 40 acre farm a few miles north in Ripley County. Milton and Mary Ann continued their care.

Harvey Jarvis died around 1881. He was age 78. Sarah Robinson Jarvis died around 1883. She was 80. Harvey's will left their modest estate to Milton and Mary Ann.

We don't have an exact date of Harvey's death, but his will was written in fall 1880 and recorded in February 1882. So let's guess he died in the fall or winter of 1881.

Jarvis' Ripley County farm

Harvey Jarvis' will

Recall that Harvey and Sarah had earlier deeded their Jefferson County farm to Mary Ann Jarvis in return for life care. It seems no such deed was done for the Ripley County farm. But Mary Ann and Milton were living with Harvey and Sarah and must have been providing care.

Even if there was no statement in the land deed, Harvey's will took care of the situation. The estate, such that it was, all went to Mary Ann and Milton.

Don't be hurtful

My inspiration for starting this blog of family stories came from a session at a genealogy conference. The presenter had a few cardinal rules, among them to not write hurtful or damaging things about anyone. I've thought about the rule from time to time as I've written stories. Our families aren't saints. They weren't perfect, just as we aren't perfect.

Sometimes there are conflicts in families. We've all had them.

Why bequeath one dollar?

I searched for reasons why someone's will would bequeath one dollar. It seems like this is often used to be explicit that someone is not to receive any other portion of an estate, especially a spouse or child.

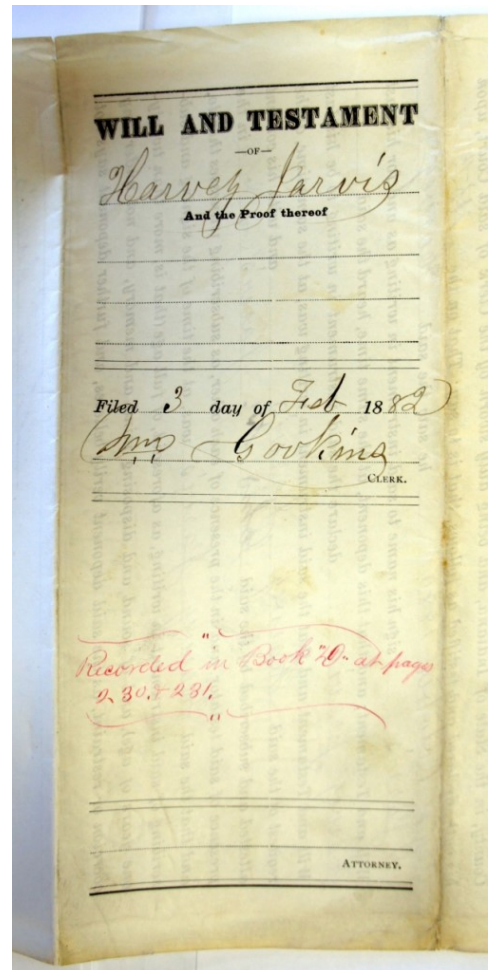

If you don't mention a child in the will, it could be contested as an accidental omission. If you bequeath one dollar, it's a specific and intentional act of what you will leave them.

A word of caution: check the requirements of your state. Some states require parents to leave each child at least a token amount for the will to be valid. This can be a small amount, as little as $1.

How to Write Children Out of a Will – Christine Funk, J.D.

Usually, the goal is not to give the child $1, but just to acknowledge that the lack of a larger inheritance is intentional. A will that simply doesn't mention a child may appear to be incomplete. A will that gives them a dollar clearly states that they should not get anything more and that it was done on purpose.

Why would you leave $1 to an heir – Law Office of Barbara J. Dibble

I believe that Harvey and Sarah were making an explicit statement that Milton and Mary Ann were to receive all their estate. Maybe that was a legal statement to assure that nothing got challenged. Or maybe the other sons had caused trouble about Harvey and Sarah deeding their farm to Milton and Mary Ann. We're left to make our own conclusions.

What happened to the farm?

Although we don't have the deeds, the land transfer records indicate that the 40-acre farm was forfeited to the state, and then later transferred to Mary Connell in 1885.

So maybe Mary Ann and Milton didn't make out so well on their extended care of Harvey and Sarah.

Where are Harvey and Sarah buried?

Unfortunately, we don't know where Harvey and Sarah are buried.

Milton and Mary Ann are buried in Cross Plains Methodist Cemetery, Milton in an unmarked grave.

Milton Jarvis is in one of the unmarked graves in the Cross Plains cemetery.

Is it possible that Harvey and Sarah are buried in the same cemetery and their markers are gone? Since Milton and Mary Ann were responsible for the burial for Harvey and Sarah, it seems that they might be buried in the same cemetery.

Many other Jarvises are buried in Benham or in Cross Plains, where the nearest church cemeteries are.

Cross Plains churches and cemeteries

Maybe a future researcher will find where Harvey and Sarah are buried. Since we can't find them, let's look at some other Jarvis burials in Cross Plains cemeteries.

Cross Plains Methodist Church

The Cross Plains Methodist Church was founded in 1832. The original church was a log structure just northwest of the present building. The present brick building was built in the fall of 1875 and winter of 1876. Jarvises worked on the brick masonry. The cost was $2,100.

In the fall of 1876 the village of Cross Plains held a festival for the purpose of raising funds to get a bell for the church. Receipts for the evening, $126.60. Rev. J.B. Brewer went to Cincinnati and procured a bell, cost $87.00.

Records of the early days of the church include the following financial statistics: In 1875, the church insurance for 3 years was $20. The assessment for the pastor in 1884 was $77.

There are lots of Jarvises in the cemetery. It's remarkable that all these Jarvises (except spouses) are descended from William and Margaret Jarvis of Pendleton County, Kentucky.

Cross Plains Baptist Church

The Cross Plains Baptist Church was founded in 1843. The church building was built in 1844 and is still in use today. The church is one half mile east of town.

In the Dec. 1855 meeting the treasurer reported having spent the following for church related items: candles $1.00, wine of Lord's Supper $1.10, and for church minutes pen and ink $1.00. The church voted to pay its pastor $60.00 per year or $5.00 per service.

Joseph and Martha (3G) to Ohio County

Joseph and Martha Jarvis had lived in Shelby Township, Jefferson County since they married in 1852. They bought and sold and moved to various farms, all within a few miles of each other.

Leaving Jefferson County

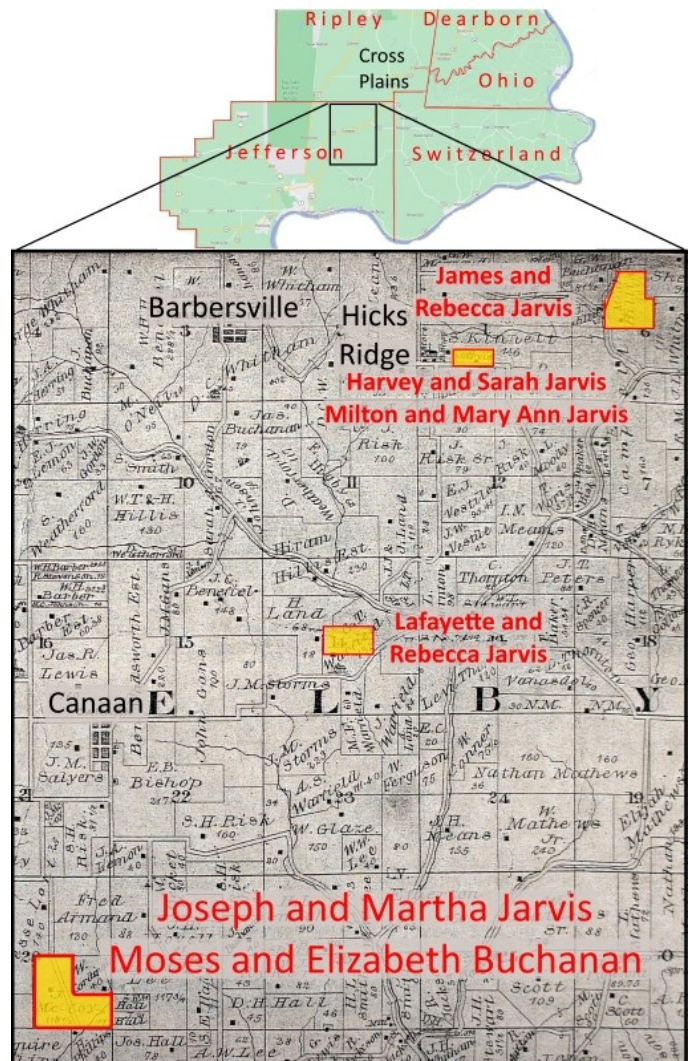

In 1873, Joseph and Martha bought a joint venture farm with Martha's brother Moses Buchanan and his wife Elizabeth. That farm was also in Shelby Township, Jefferson County, where Joseph and Martha's extended families lived.

The joint venture didn't go well. The mortgage was foreclosed in the fall of 1875. The occupants were to vacate the property by March 1, 1876.

After living in Jefferson County for 25 years, Joseph and Martha left the county.

Coincidentally, Joseph's parent Harvey and Martha moved to Ripley County in 1879, along with Joseph's brother Milton and his family.

Joseph's brother Lafayette also moved from Jefferson County into Ripley County around the same time.

Brother James stayed, and his children had farms in Jefferson County into the early 1900s.

Jarvis farms – Jefferson County – mid-1870s

A legal problem

There may have been another motivation to leave Jefferson County. Joseph was in a legal suit with the school district of Shelby Township where he lived. It involved a contract to construct schools in the township.

Joseph prevailed on a technicality in the state Supreme Court, but I imagine it was costly.

THE case of Joseph R. Jarvis vs. Shelby township, this county, has been reversed by the Supreme Court. This was an action (in the language of the decision) by the appellee, the civil township, against the appellant upon an agreement in relation to the building of certain school-houses. The contract might be construed to have been made with the school township, as the civil township had no power to enter into such contracts. But in any case the action should have been brought by the school and not by the civil township.

A move to Rising Sun

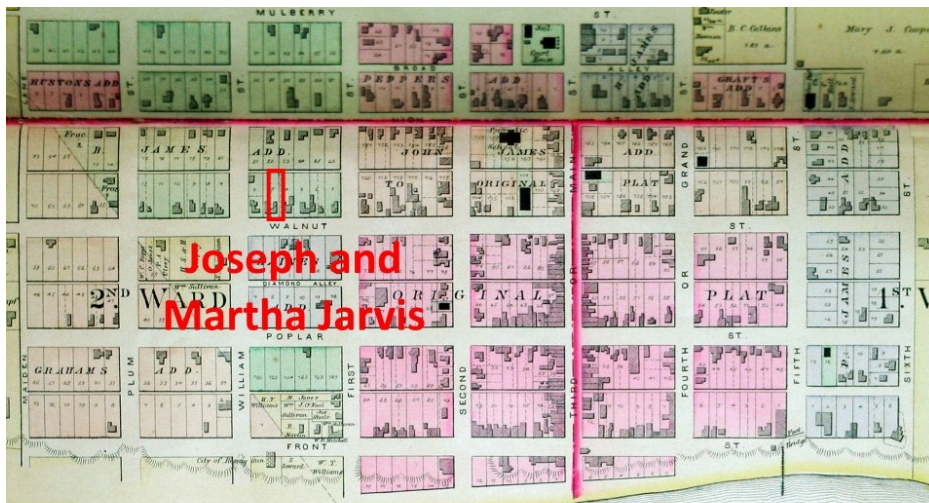

In 1883, Joseph and Martha “moved to town”, the Ohio River port town of Rising Sun. They had been on the farm in Milton for seven years.

Joseph was age 53, Martha 48. They would farm no more. Henceforth Joseph would earn his living as a mason.

Their son Charles would also give up farming and move nine miles southwest of Milton to Sugar Branch in Switzerland County. Sugar Branch is where Newton (2G) was living.

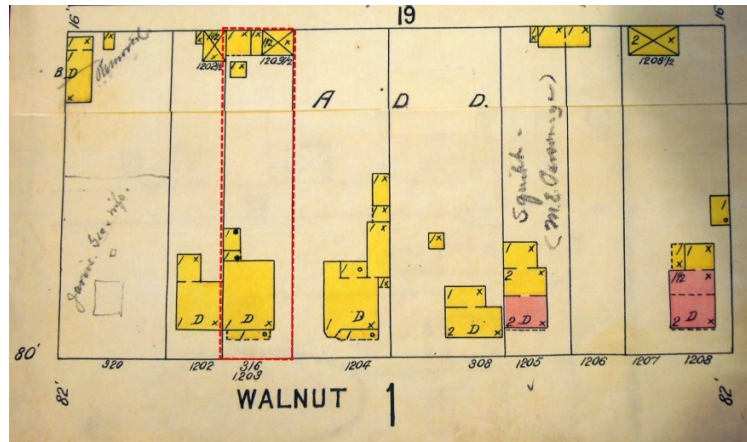

Rising Sun was a river town. Although river commerce had declined after the Civil War and given way to railroads, Rising Sun was still a large town. The population was about 1,500.

Newton Jarvis (2G) and Sarah Beaty

Newton P. Jarvis was born October 2, 1855 in Jefferson County, Indiana. His parents were Joseph R. and Martha Ann Buchanan Jarvis. Newton was the 2nd oldest of eight children.

I don't know what name his middle initial P. represents, but there were lots of Parkers and Pryors in the family. Maybe it's one of those.

Newton grew up in Shelby Township, Jefferson County. His parents moved a lot during his childhood, but always in Jefferson County until 1876. Then they moved to Ohio County, just north of the border of Switzerland County. Newton would live his adult life in this area.

Sarah Alice Beaty

Sarah Alice Beaty was born December 31, 1858, in Madison, Jefferson County, Indiana. Her parents were Elijah and Sarah Laughridge Beaty. Sarah was the sixth of ten children.

Sarah was sick

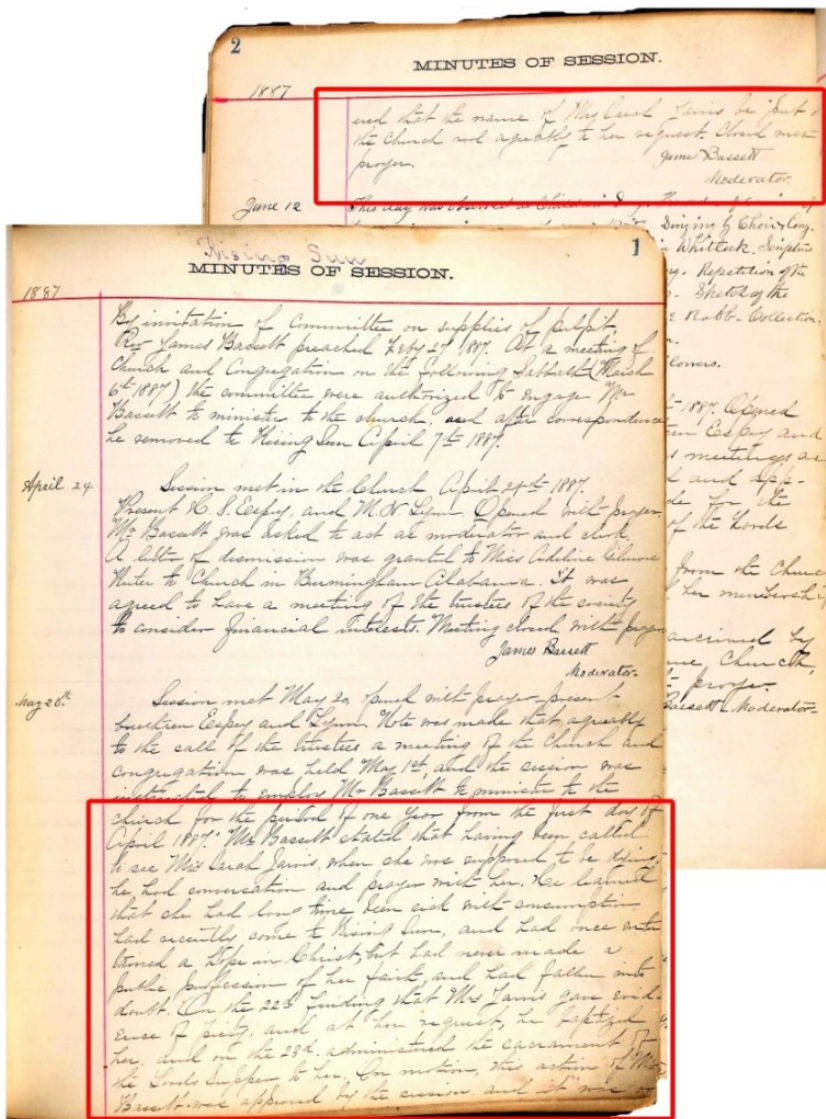

Sarah was sick, very sick. And she knew it.

In spring 1887, Sarah went to Rising Sun and asked to see the Presbyterian minister. Here's her poignant story, told in the church minutes.

Mr. Bassett stated that having been called to see Mrs. Sarah Jarvis when she was supposed to be dying, he had conversation and prayer with her. He learned that she had long time been sick with consumption, had recently come to Rising Sun, and had once entertained a Hope in Christ, but had never made a public profession of her faith, and had fallen into doubt. On the 22nd finding that Mrs. Jarvis gave evidence of piety, and at her request, he baptized her and on the 23rd administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to her. In motion, this action of Mr. Bassett was approved by the session and it was ordered that the name of Mrs. Sarah Jarvis be put in the Church roll agreeably to her request. Closed with prayer.

Census – George and Eliza Burton – Rising Sun, Indiana – 1880

Family Nibbles

Ten years later, in the 1880 census, Hannah isn't listed. But a son Charles T. is listed and is the same age as Anna. Charles Thomas (known as Tom) turns out to be Anna's twin brother.

There's also a younger daughter Rebecca. George and Eliza had seven children.

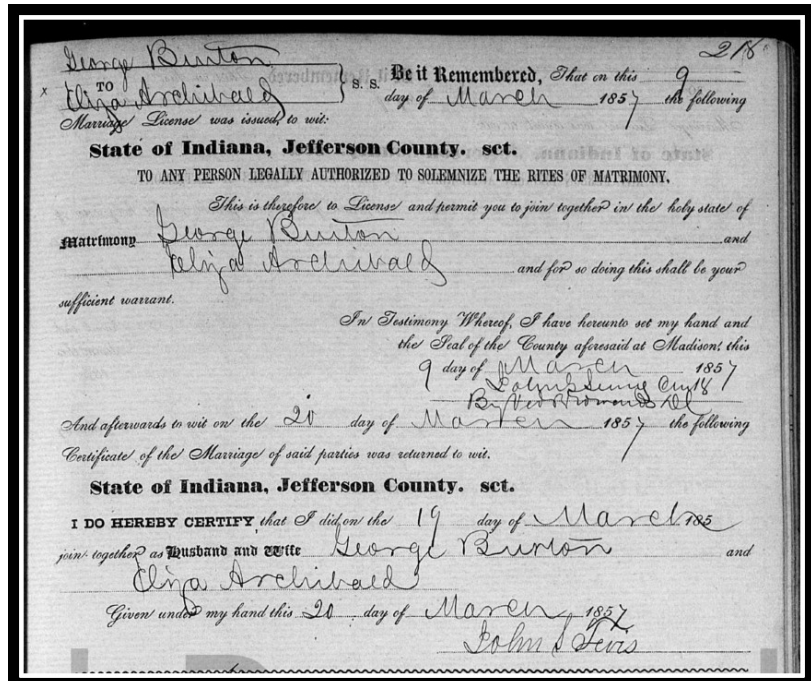

George and Eliza Burton (3G)

Anna's father George Burton was born in Jefferson County in 1834 and spent his early life there. Her mother was Eliza Archibald, whose family moved from Indiana to Illinois and then back to Rising Sun.

George Burton and Eliza Archibald married March 9, 1857 in Jefferson County.

They lived in Jefferson County in 1860, but soon moved to Rising Sun and lived there in the 1870s and 1880s.

Greensburg, Decatur County, Indiana

About 1890, George and Eliza moved to Greensburg, in Decatur County, Indiana. Decatur is the county just north of Ripley County.

Greensburg was a growing town, with a population around 4,000 in the 1890s. It was located on the Michigan Road, so it was on the route from the Ohio River to Indianapolis.

Greensburg was famous then, as it is now, for the tree growing from the Decatur County Courthouse roof. There have been several subsequent trees since the 1890s, but a tree has always been growing there.

Close to kin

Eliza Archibald Burton had a younger sister Annabelle. Annabelle had married William Conley in 1861, but William died in 1864.

In 1865, Annabelle married George Burton's brother Allen. So there were two Burton brothers married to two Archibald sisters. I believe George and Eliza moved to Greensburg because Allen and Annabelle were living there. Both families settled on North Broadway, just a few houses apart.

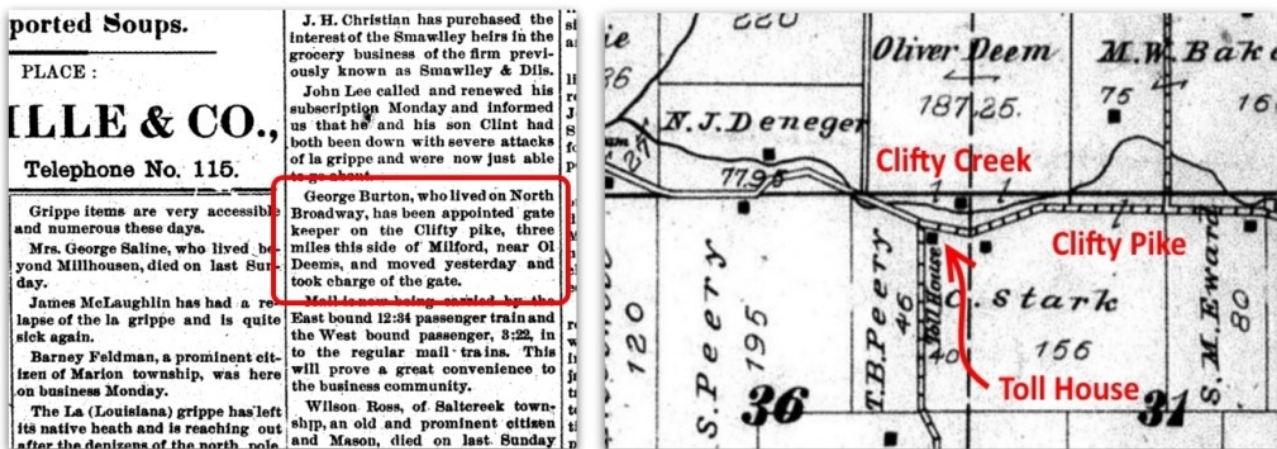

Greensburg, Indiana – c. 1900

Workaday

George had been listed as a farm laborer in the earlier censuses. His brother Allen was a farm laborer and dray driver (freight wagon driver).

In 1892, George got appointed as the gate keeper on the Clifty Pike, a toll road. Probably less physical than a farm laborer job. After all, George was then age 57.

Life in Greensburg 1890s

In 1890s, Eliza and George were in their 60s. Their children were grown. Daughter Lillie never married or left home, so she was living with her parents in her 20s.

Eliza had a few bouts of poor health. In 1894, she was sent to Good Samaritan Hospital in Cincinnati. She recovered. And despite repeated bouts, she continued to live a long life in Greensburg.

The store-room of S. H. Morris has been treated to a new coat of paint and paper and has been thoroughly refitted with natural gas light fixtures, and is now the lightest and brightest place in Greensburg in which to buy dry goods.

It will be of interest to many to learn that word has been received here that Mrs. George Burton who was sent to the Good Samaritan hospital several weeks ago, is improving rapidly, enjoying her meals, and is thought to be on the highway to recovery by her nurse and physicians.

A protest against the appointment of J. W. Spear as postmaster at Alert, has been received at Washington. It is signed by eighteen persons, male and female, only eight of whom are democrats, and only two of these get mail at Alert; one nobody at Alert ever heard of, and seven do not live in this county. Pretty protest, that.

Aaron and Sugar Branch

Newton and Anna Jarvis were living around Aaron and Sugar Branch, in Switzerland County. Some of the citations list Sugar Branch, others list Aaron.

I haven't found land records, so I don't know exactly where they were living. I think they were living on the same property, perhaps even the same household, with Newton's brother Charles and his family.

Charles had married Anna Adams in 1879, the same year Newton had married Sarah Beaty. Charles and Anna had seven children during the 1880s and 1890s. Charles is listed in the census as a farmer, but later in life became a salesman for farm equipment.

The news from Sugar Branch

In Vevay, the county seat of Switzerland County, there were as many as three newspapers in town. Most county seat towns had a newspaper. These papers had correspondents in the smaller towns like Cross Plains and Sugar Branch and Aaron to report on local happenings and gossip.

Newton Got Pneumonia

In 1899, Newton and Anna had been married for ten years. They were living near Aaron and Sugar Branch in Switzerland County.

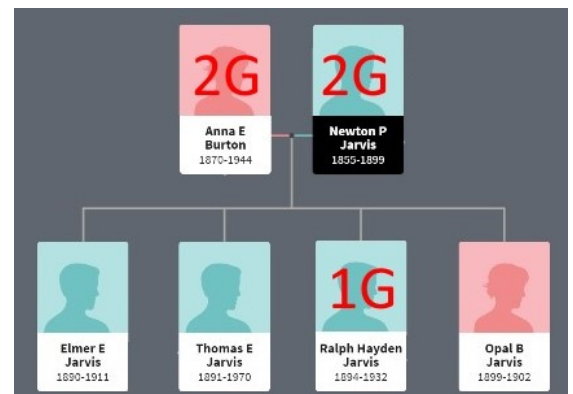

Aaron and Sugar Branch – Switzerland County, Indiana

Newton's daughters from his first marriage to Sarah were Arminta and Myrtle. Arminta, 20, was living in Cincinnati. Myrtle, 15, may have been living with grandparents Joseph and Martha in Rising Sun.

Newton and Anna's sons were Elmer, 10, Tom, 9, and Ralph, 6. Daughter Opal had just been born January 26, 1899.

Newton's brother Charles and his family were living nearby.

News and gossip

The local newspaper gossip columns reported normal family events to begin the year 1899.

"M.S. Jarvis is running a saw mill for Ed. Day at Correct." – Vevay Reveille – January 19, 1899

"Miss Arminta Jarvis, of Cincinnati, came home last week to spend a few days with relatives." – March 2, 1899

"Miss Myrtle Jarvis called on Mr. Sellers one day last week." Vevay Reveille – March 16, 1899

But there were concerns...

People were getting sick.

"Miss Gertrude Jarvis has a severe attack of the grip." – Vevay Reveille – February 16, 1899

"Little Ralph Jarvis is very sick with pneumonia." – Vevay Reveille – March 9, 1899

"Otto Jarvis died Saturday, April 29, aged 36 years. He never was very stout and had been sick since early spring." Vevay Reveille – May 4, 1899

"Mrs. Burton has returned to her home in Greensburg, called there by the illness of her daughter." – Vevay Reveille – May 25, 1899

The Grip

The grip is another name for influenza. There was an outbreak in 1899. A lot of people were getting sick.

After a respite of more than 50 years, pandemic influenza struck twice near the end of the nineteenth century, in 1889-1890 and again in 1899-1900.

Emerging Infections: Pandemic Influenza – The Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health

The outbreak of grippe in the winter of 1899 was much more widespread. It had apparently started before Christmas 1898. In the first issue of the Normal-Eye for the new year, the staff posed the question and offered advice:

"Have you had the Grippe? If you haven't, 1st, be careful, 2nd, be careful.

If you have, just keep on being careful." ("Have you had the grippe?", 1899)

Cures for Catarrh, Bronchitis & La Grippe, ca 1900

La Grippe

By Barbara Schock

The title doesn't refer to a secret handshake. It is the name used for influenza in the 1890s.

In the February 1, 1899, issue of the Galesburg Evening Mail, the City Health Officer, Dr. Chalmers, was quoted by a reporter as saying there was an epidemic of influenza in town. It was the most serious occurrence in the past several years. He also said it was due to atmospheric conditions and it was causing much suffering in the lower classes.

People with influenza may develop complications such as pneumonia, bronchitis, asthma flare-ups, acute respiratory distress, etc. For older adults and people with a chronic illness, pneumonia can be deadly.

1899 ended much differently than it had begun.

Newton had been widowed in 1887 when Sarah died. Now, twelve years later, Anna was widowed when Newton died. She had a family of four children, one of which was a baby less than a year old. Anna was age 29.

Her mother Eliza had been widowed two years earlier, when George Burton died in 1897. Anna and the kids would move in with Eliza. And there were extended family nearby; Eliza's sister and George's brother lived a few doors away and Anna's brother also lived in Greensburg.

In November 1899, Anna was earning money by taking in washing and sewing in Greensburg.

Put 1899 behind

Let's get ready to ring in the new year and a new century – 1900. What's in store for the Jarvis families in the new century?

Martha and Joseph (3G) 1900s

We last encountered Joseph and Martha Jarvis when they moved to Rising Sun in 1883. They had bought a lot and house on Walnut Street. Joseph made a living as a mason; he no longer farmed.

Rising Sun was an over-the-hill river port town, but it was a nice town to live in. Big enough for amenities, but not too big.

Their family

Martha and Joseph had suffered the death of their son Newton in April 1899. It was their first loss of a child.

Newton had lived close to them, as Sugar Branch was only fifteen miles from Rising Sun. They had visited often and were in Sugar Branch during Newton's last days. Their son Charles also lived in Sugar Branch with his family.

Joseph and Martha's eldest son William and his family were living in Rising Sun. Son John and family were living in Rising Sun. And their youngest son George was living with them.

Their daughter Lillian was single and living in Cincinnati, as was their married daughter Luella. Lavina Miranda was married and living in Fairfield, Ohio, fifteen miles north of Cincinnati. They visited often.

Their home

Joseph and Martha were living in their house on Walnut Street in Rising Sun. They had lived in their house for 17 years. Joseph was 69, Martha 64. Joseph's occupation was stone mason.

Joseph and Martha's granddaughter Myrtle, 16, was living with them. Myrtle was one of Newton's two daughters with his first wife, Sarah Beaty Jarvis. Sarah had died in 1887, and Newton died in 1899.

At age 16, Myrtle didn't have any living parents. She was living with her grandparents. Sadly, Myrtle would die of tuberculosis in 1904, at age 20.

Joseph and Martha's youngest son George, 22, was still at home. George's occupation was plasterer. George was Newton's youngest brother, born in 1877.

George would become a popular citizen around Rising Sun, serving as the county sheriff for several years. George died in 1931.

SHERIFF GEO. W. JARVIS DIES IN CHRIST HOSPITAL

George W. Jarvis, aged 55, sheriff of Ohio county and one of its most popular residents died in Christ hospital, Cincinnati, today (Thursday).

Mr. Jarvis had not enjoyed the best of health for some time but, being of an optimistic nature, did not complain. On July 1 he was taken to the hospital and an operation was performed. He returned to his home but, failing to recuperate, was again removed to the hospital last Thursday and underwent a major operation. Prior to and following the ordeal, blood transfusion was resorted to and for a time it appeared that he might recover but on Tuesday evening his condition grew worse and all hope of recovery was abandoned.

Mr. Jarvis was employed for a number of years by the Ohio River Telephone Co., here, having helped with the installation of this branch, and while there made many acquaintances and friends throughout the county. This together with his friendly and kindly disposition made him a general favorite.

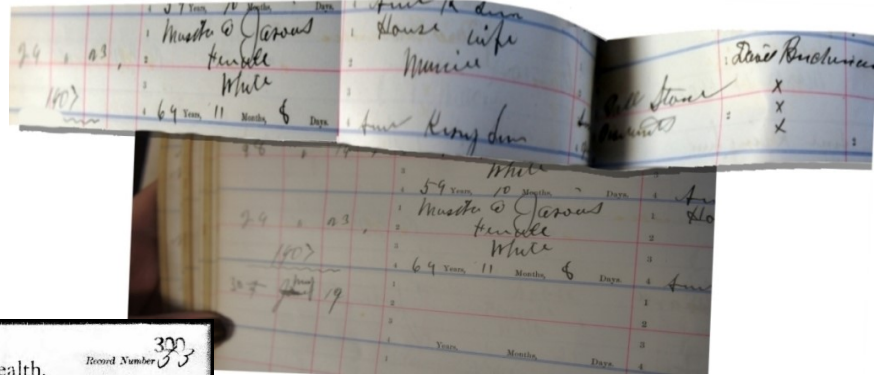

Some years ago he served two terms as sheriff of the county and was serving a third term at the time of his death.

Surviving are his widow and devoted companion, Mrs. Laura Jarvis, two sisters, Mrs. Louella Thompson of Covington, Ky., and Mrs. W. N. Manser of Hamilton, O., and one brother, Charles Jarvis of Chrisman, Ill.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Martha died in 1905

Martha Ann Buchanan Jarvis died on November 23, 1905 at Rising Sun, Indiana. She was a few weeks short of her 70th birthday.

Death Register – Martha A Jarvis – 1905

The cause of death was recorded as gall stone, peritonitis.

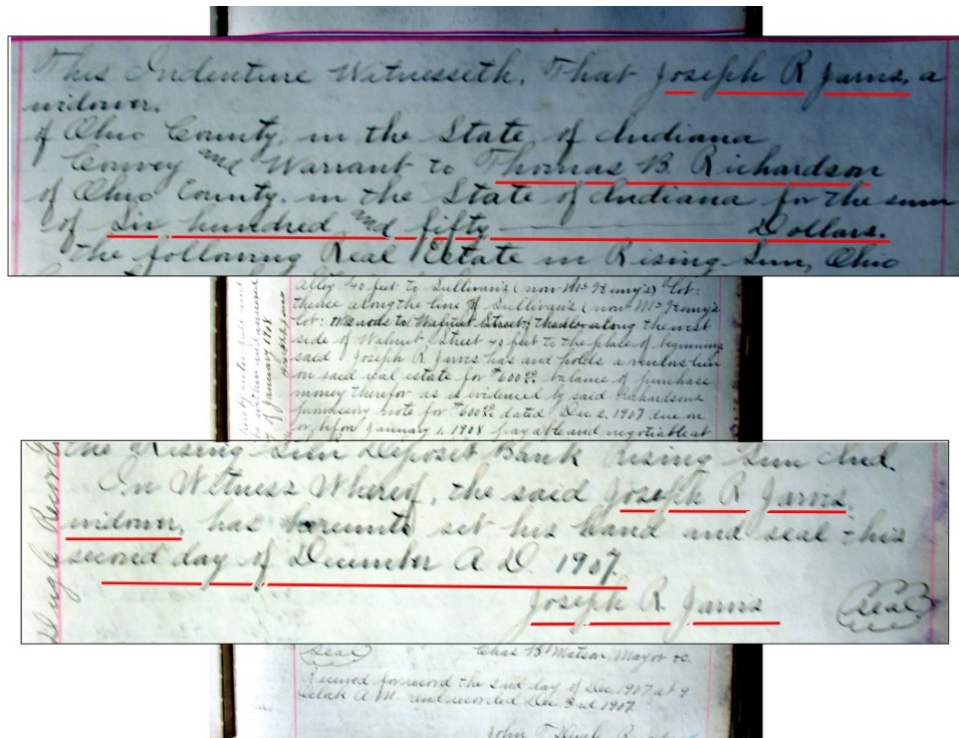

Joseph sold the house

Martha had died in 1905. Joseph remained in the house in Rising Sun, living with his son William and William's son Melvin. William's wife Nancy had died in 1902. Unfortunately, William died in 1907. And Melvin died a year later in 1908, age 22. And Joseph's granddaughter Myrtle had died in 1904. It must have been difficult years for Joseph.

After William died, Joseph sold the house and lot in Rising Sun in December 1907. Joseph and Martha had lived in their house in Rising Sun for over 20 years, since 1883.

He sold to Thomas Richardson for $650 and carried the mortgage for a year. The deed says, "Joseph R Jarvis, widower, has hereunto set his hand and seal this second day of December A.D. 1907." The reference to "widower" may be because a person can't sell property without spousal consent.

Family Nibbles

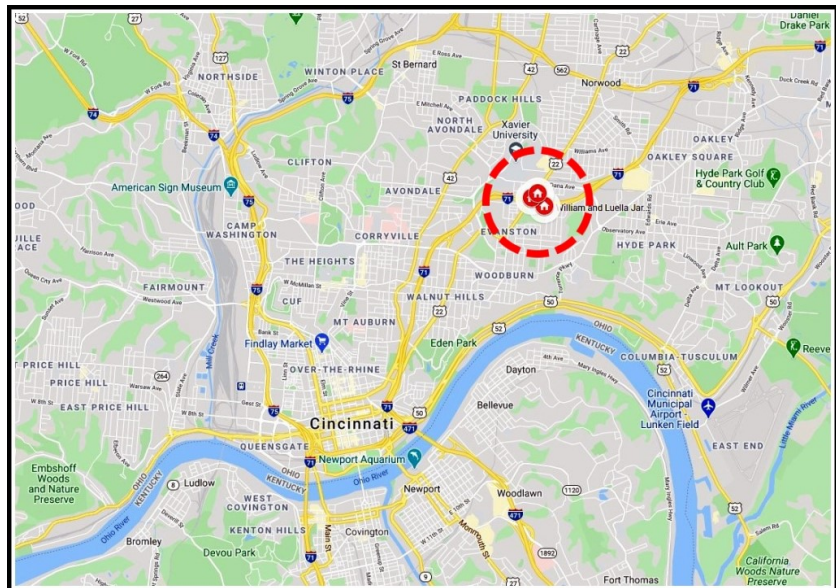

Everything worked out, and the mortgage was paid at the end of the next year.

A move to Cincinnati

After Joseph sold his place in Rising Sun, he moved to Cincinnati into the household of his daughter Luella in 1908.

Luella Florence Jarvis had married at age 34 to William H Thomson, a widower. William and Luella lived at 3528 Hudson, not far from Fire Co. No. 39 where William was the captain.

Stories of Our Jarvis Ancestors 1865-1920

In 1912, Joseph Jarvis had an apartment at Montgomery Road and Clarion Avenue, across the street from Fire Co. No. 39. In 1913, he moved to another apartment a few blocks south.

Fire Co. No. 39

William Thomson was the fire department captain of Cincinnati Fire Co. No. 39.

Family Nibbles

In the early 1910s, the company still relied on horse-drawn steamer wagons. Here's an interesting story:

Firemen at Engine Company 39 were looking forward to lunch. The bells rang above the joker stand as an alarm of fire was taken. The horses, Bull and Roxie, rushed forward to their harnesses and the doors of the house flung open. Snaps were fastened and the men jumped aboard. In seconds, the engine was off, tearing across Montgomery Road and down Clarion Avenue. Rain had been falling steadily making the roads treacherous.

Suddenly, as the engine swerved to the right turning onto Winding Way, Bull slipped and fell causing Roxie to be tossed to the ground as well. The animals let out a terrible cry. The weight of the engine tossed the horses into the curb with the engine coming to rest on Bull whose neck was broken. He was killed instantly.

A mounted police officer arrived and euthanized Roxie with his pistol. Chief Bunker notified a police detective that two boys had been witnessed running from the college just as smoke was seen.

Family Nibbles

I assume that Joseph arranged for their headstone when Martha died in 1905, because his birth date is included but not his death date. There's a small ground marker next to the headstone that reads "Father" that was added when Joseph died.

There are a few more markers of interest...

I'm intrigued by Melvin Jarvis. After all, that's my father's name. Melvin was Ralph Jarvis' cousin, eight years his senior. Do you suppose that when Ralph Jarvis was choosing a name for his son that he honored his cousin Melvin, who had died at a young age? We'll never know, but it's tempting to think it's true. I've found no other Jarvis named Melvin.

Greensburg Days 1900s

Newton Jarvis had died in April 1899. Anna Burton Jarvis was age 29 and had four children – three boys ages 9, 7, and 4, and a baby girl, Opal, less than a year old.

Mother with children – c 1900

By September 1899, Anna had settled her affairs in Sugar Branch and moved with her four children to Greensburg in Decatur County. There they moved into the household of her mother Eliza Burton.

Eliza's husband George Burton had died in 1897, so there were two adult women and four children in the household.

Income was likely a daily concern. In November 1899, we find classified ads in the newspaper where Anna was doing washing and sewing.

Census — Eliza Burton and Anna Jarvis — Decatur County, Indiana — 1900

The census shows Eliza Burton's household on North Broadway, including daughter Anna, 30, Elmer, 10, Tommie, 8, Ralph, 5, and Opal 1. Anna's occupation is listed as Common Laborer. The two oldest boys are attending school.

Eliza's brother Allen Burton was living just a few houses away, also on North Broadway. His wife Bell and daughter Lillie are in his household. Allen is a farm laborer.

Anna married Harrison Mounts 1901

Anna Burton Jarvis (2G) married Harrison Mounts on January 30, 1901 at the Centenary Methodist Church in Greensburg.

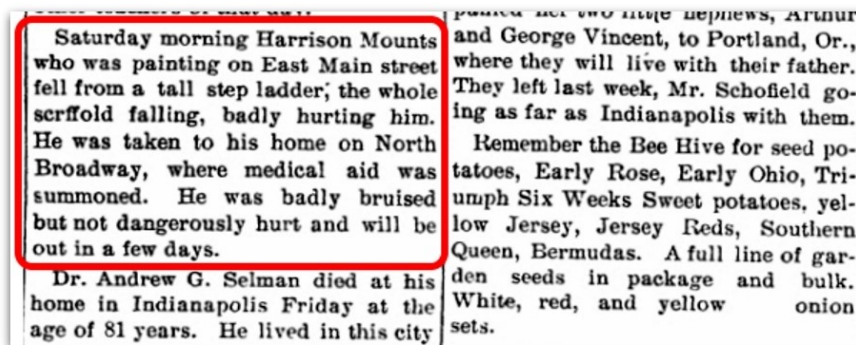

*Marriage – Anna Jarvis and Harrison Mounts – Centenary
Methodist Episcopal Church – January 30, 1901*

Anna and Harrison were the same age – 30. Harrison was called Harry. He was born and raised in Switzerland County, Indiana, in Cotton Township. That's the same township as Sugar Branch. So maybe Anna knew Harry around Aaron and Sugar Branch.

Harry moved to Greensburg as a young man, so perhaps that's where Anna met him.

Harrison was a house painter

Harrison is listed in the census as a house painter. That's corroborated by this 1903 story.

Greensburg Standard – April 24, 1903

Harrison played baseball

Harrison was rather famous locally as a baseball player. He was the pitcher for the Greensburg Reds.

Reds Strong as Ever.

The Greensburg fans are in fine spirits just now over the showing made by the Reds in the opening games of the season.

Sunday they played the first game with the Hyde Parks of Cincinnati and defeated them easily by a score of 9 to 2.

Tuesday they met the Lawrenceburgs, one of the strongest teams in Southern Indiana with Justis, a crack pitcher of the Southern League, pitted against them. Justis had a fine assortment of curves and shoots which were very exasperating to the Reds but they succeeded in solving a few of them, getting five hits off of him.

Harrison Mounts, the veteran Greensburg pitcher, officiated in the box for the Reds and his work compared favorably with Justis's.

There was not an idle moment during the progress of the game. Up to the eighth there was a suppressed silence that was broken by Mounts making a two-bagger and leading the way to victory.

The score:	R.	H.	E.
Law.—	0	0	1 0 0 0 0 0 1 2 5 4
Reds—	0	0	0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 3 5 3

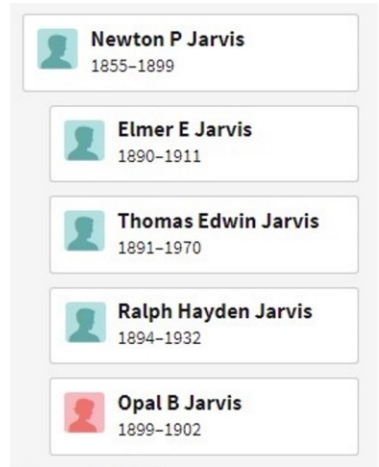

Batteries—Justis and Kronbey; Mounts and Hunche. Strike outs, Justis, 9; Mounts, 7.

The Reds are stronger than ever at first and behind the bat while the other positions are well taken care of. The attendance was kept down to 300 by the showers. With favorable weather it would have been a thousand.

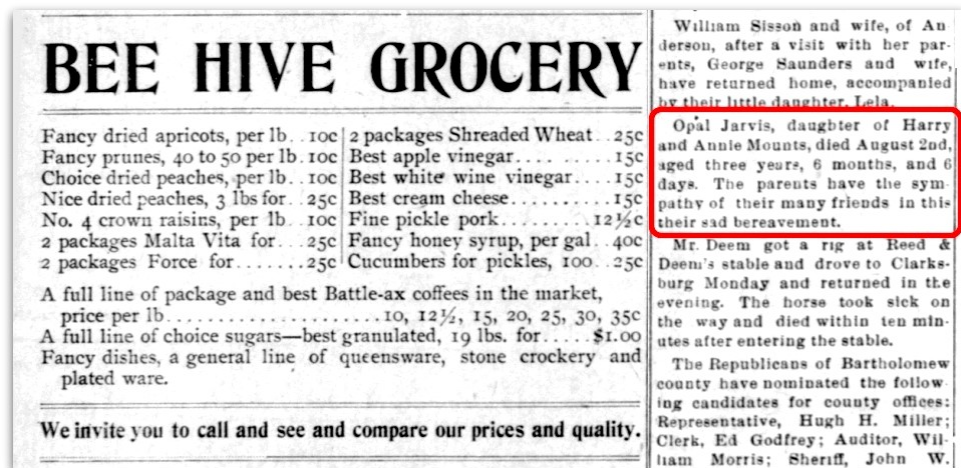

Greensburg Standard — May 2, 1905

Anna's kids from Newton

When Anna married Harrison Mounts in 1901, her sons from first husband Newton were Elmer, 11, Tom, 10, and Ralph, 7.

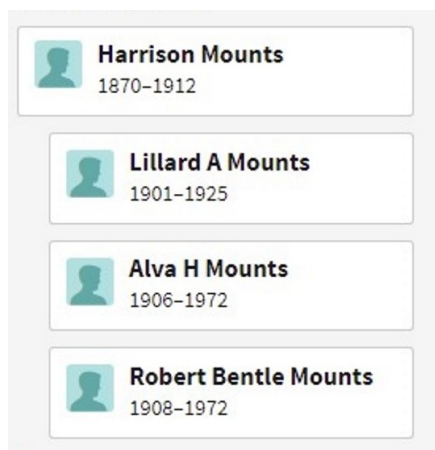

In the census, daughter Opal was 2. Sadly, Opal died on August 2, 1902. She was 3 years old.

Greensburg News – August 8, 1902

Anna and Harrison Mounts have kids

Anna and Harrison married in 1901. In 1902 they had a son Lillard Mounts.

Another son Alva was born in 1906, and then Robert in 1908.

By 1908, there were six boys, from the eldest Elmer Jarvis, 18, to the youngest Robert Mounts, newly born. Both Anna and Harrison were age 38.

It's 1910

The 1910 census shows some interesting details:

NAME	RELATION	AGE	SEX	RACE	BIRTH	EDUCATION	INDUSTRY	REMARKS
Harrison Mount	Head	39	M	W	1871	12	Painter
Anna E. Mount	Wife	39	F	W	1871	12	None

Robert B. Mount	Son	2	M	W	1908	12	None
Ralph Jarvis	Nephew	15	M	W	1895	12	Labor

Census – Harrison and Anna Mounts – Greensburg, Indiana – 1910

Harrison and Anna are listed, both age 39. Harrison's occupation is house painter.

The three Mounts sons are listed – Lillard, 8, Alva, 4, and Robert, 2. Lillard attended school in the last year.

Ralph Jarvis is listed, but as a nephew instead of a step-son. Oh well. Mistakes are common. Ralph's occupation is farm laborer. It's also listed that he did not attend school for the last year. He's age 15. So I'd guess that's the extent of his education and he won't be back in school.

Anna's two older sons, Elmer, 20, and Tom, 19, are not listed in the Mounts household. Here are their circumstances:

Elmer Jarvis was working as a hired farm hand on the farm of Marshall Satterfield in Champaign County, Illinois.

Tom was working as a laborer and at odd jobs in Michigan City, Indiana. Michigan City is an industrial port city on Lake Michigan, so there were lots of jobs on the docks and in factories. The census contains an interest note "These men have no regular place of abode."

A bicycle race

On June 2, 1910, there was held a field day at the fairgrounds. There were many competitions and age groups. Among the event winners was 15 year old Ralph Jarvis, co-winner of the 15-and-older bicycle race.

Stories of Our Jarvis Ancestors 1865-1920

This story is interesting because we have a photo of Ralph on a bicycle in Greensburg at about that time. Other than the studio photo of Ralph at age 3, this is the earliest photo we have. Ralph looks like he's dressed to work at Nordmeyer's Ice Cream shop instead of a bicycle race. His brothers Lillard and Alva Mounts were in on the act, each posing on the bike.

Nine Finger Blackie

“Nine Finger Blackie”. That was my grandfather Ralph Jarvis’ nickname. Although I never knew him, I heard his nickname from those that did. There were lots of stories about Nine Finger Blackie. I’d always wondered about the origin of the nickname.

Ralph Jarvis, a young man employed at the Nordmeyer Bakery, had his index finger mashed off at the second joint Monday by being caught in a power ice cream freezer. Dr. Kercheval was called.

This is a reproduction of the painting 'The Picnic' by the Pre-Raphaelite painter John Everett Millais. The scene depicts a group of approximately ten people, including men, women, and children, gathered for a picnic in a lush, wooded setting. The figures are dressed in late 19th-century attire; the women wear long, flowing dresses and various styles of hats, while the men are in suits and hats. They are seated on a white cloth spread on the grass, surrounded by picnic items like bottles, plates, and a small dog. The composition is dominated by a large, ancient tree on the right, with its thick trunk and dense foliage providing shade. In the background, a river flows through a valley, and a small bridge is visible in the distance. The overall atmosphere is one of a peaceful, idyllic day in nature. The painting is signed 'J.E. Millais' in the bottom left corner.

Anna's sons from her marriage to Newton Jarvis are Ralph, 15, Elmer, 20, and Tom, 18. Ralph is living at home. Elmer's working in Illinois, Tom in Michigan City, Indiana.

Mrs. Eliza Burton, a well known resident of the city living on North Broadway was seventy-one years of age yesterday and friends helped her celebrate the event in proper style. Her daughter, Mrs. Clara Sparks, planned a surprise and in the afternoon a number of friends, carrying well filled baskets with provisions that will last the recipient for some months, called on her. The surprise was so well planned and executed that the recipient had no previous knowledge and when the visitors had assembled there was not a happier person in the city than Mrs. Burton.

Though seventy-one years of age, Mrs. Burton is spry and active. She still has ambition to do things and is very industrious, and these excellent traits have won her the esteem and friendship of many as well as her pleasant ways and sunny, happy disposition.

DIED AFTER TEN LONG DAYS

OF SEVERE SUFFERING—HARRISON
MOUNTS EXPIRED AT SIX O'CLOCK
THURSDAY EVENING AT HOME
ON NORTH ANDERSON
STREET.

Friday's Daily

Harrison Mount, a well known resident of the city, living on North Anderson street, died at six o'clock Thursday evening. He had suffered the most severe pain for the past ten days, but the end came peacefully. Mr. Mount was stricken Tuesday of last week with impaction of the bowels, and despite the efforts of skilled physicians he was unable to secure relief.

The deceased was born in Switzerland county, this State, in March of 1870, and was united in marriage to Anna Burton Jarvis on January 30, 1901. He had lived in this city for a number of years with the exception of a year spent in Illinois and one at Morris. Mr. Mount was a painter by trade and followed this work in season. A few years ago he played semi-professional baseball and was a pitcher that had made good in many a hard diamond contest. He was the youngest of eleven children, and his is the first death in the family. A widow, three sons, Lillard, Alva and Robert, with seven brothers and three sisters survive.

The funeral services will be held at the home on North Anderson street Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. H. Sheldon, with interment in South Park cemetery.

Harrison Mounts died unexpectedly at 6 pm December 27, 1912.

Anna had suffered the loss of a second husband. They had married in 1901, just eleven years earlier.

She would have to start a new chapter as a single mother with her three children — Lillard, 10, Alva, 6, and Robert, 4. Ralph Jarvis was living at home, but at age 17 was self-sufficient.

1915

It's always something. In November 1915, Anna had to deal with son Lillard and nephew Clyde hopping a freight train to run away from home. Oh, those teenagers!

Clyde, 12 year old son of Wm. Burton, and Lillard, 14 year old son of Mrs Anna Mounts, are reported to have been seen riding out of town on an east bound Big Four train this morning. From the fact neither of the lads had appeared at their homes for dinner, it is likely they have fallen to the appeal of the wanderlust and made good the threat the Mounts boy recently uttered that he intended running away from home.

No more does Anna deal with worries of her son Lillard, than the next month her mother Eliza suffers a severe bout of pneumonia.

And that her son Tom had married in New York City, where he was a street car conductor. Tom married Charlotte "Lottie" Valentine, who had grown up in New York.

Some sneak thief robbed the gas meter of Mrs. Anna Mounts while she was in the hospital at Indianapolis recovering from an operation. Mrs. Mounts has a lot of good news to add to this, as she has received word that her son, Thomas Jarvis, who is a street car conductor in Brooklyn, N. Y., was married a few days ago.

Family Nibbles

Mary Ellen “Mollie” Burton was Anna’s older sister by four years. She had married William A. Monroe in 1888 in Rising Sun, a year before Anna married Newton Jarvis there.

William and Mollie Monroe moved to Kansas just after they married. Their first child Bertha was born in Kansas in 1890. They had a farm a few miles northwest of Newton, Kansas. So Eliza had gone to Kansas to stay with her daughter.

Perhaps when Ralph was ready to go out into the world, his mother suggested, “Ralph, why don’t you go stay with Aunt Mollie in Kansas. You’ll have a place to stay while you look for work.”

We don’t know whether our guess is correct, but Ralph had made his way to Larned, Kansas by April 1916, where he was hospitalized for pneumonia.

1918

By 1918, Anna will move from Greensburg to Anderson, Indiana for work. She'll find a job as a railroad car cleaner. There, in 1920, she will marry again, this time to Samuel H. Stafford.

In 1919, Eliza will celebrate her 80th birthday. But she has continuing bouts of poor health.

What about Ralph?

We're getting ahead of our story. We want to find out about Ralph in Kansas.

So we'll leave Indiana for a while, and Anna and Eliza. We'll see them again soon.

John Webb

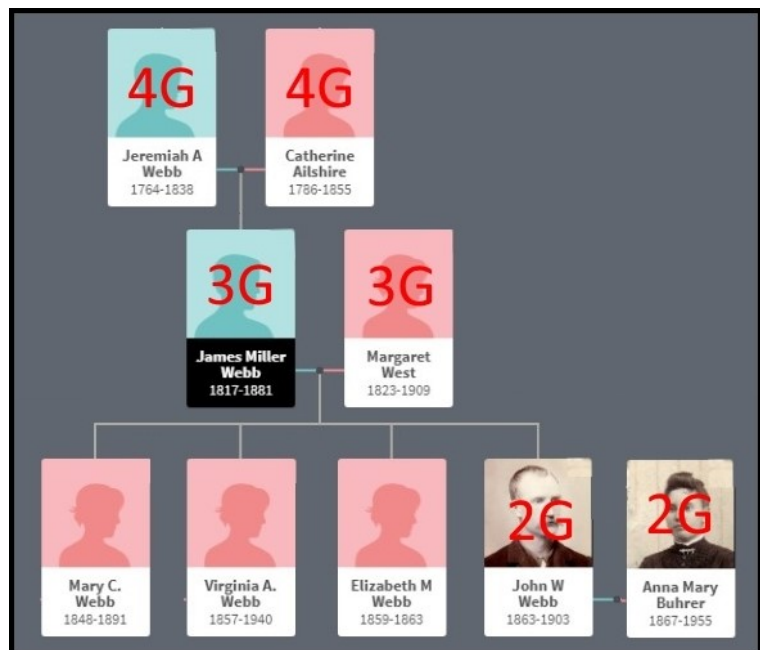

John Webb – c 1889

Ralph Jarvis married Chleo Webb. Chleo was born in 1900 on a farm south of Larned, Kansas.

Chleo's father was John Webb.

John Wesley Webb (2G) was born Monday, August 3, 1863 in Rockbridge Baths, Virginia. His parents were James Miller Webb and Margaret West Webb.

He was named after his two uncles, John C. Webb and Jeremiah Wesley Webb.

Rockbridge Baths, Virginia

Rockbridge Baths is a tiny hamlet in the Blue Ridge Mountains. It's nine miles north of the small town of Lexington and fifty miles west of Charlottesville.

The waters

Rockbridge Baths was named after the healing powers of the local alum springs.

This water I consider is the water of waters. This place is more crowded than any other in the mountains, and I have not heard of a single person who is dissatisfied.

Here's the family of James and Margaret Webb in the 1870 census. Their two daughters are Mary, 22, and Virginia, 12. Another daughter, Elizabeth, died in 1863 at age 4. John is the youngest, age 6.

James is listed as a tailor, as he was in the 1860 census ten years earlier. Look again at the clothes young John is wearing in the photo above. I'll bet his dad made it.

But I don't know who or where he would find customers in Rockbridge Baths. Maybe he was contracting. He continued his trade, but was also appointed postmaster at Rockbridge Baths in 1875.

Census – James and Margaret Webb – Rockbridge County, Virginia – 1880

In 1880, James and Margaret Webb were 62 and 57. James' occupation was tailor.

John was 16 (incorrectly listed in census as 15). John had attended school in the past year. His sister Virginia was age 22 and living at home. Burton Broadus was a 12-year-old girl living in the household. She was a servant, likely an orphaned neighbor.

Kate is John's sister, Mary Catherine Webb. She's fifteen years older than John, born in 1848. Kate married Jacob Shoulder and stayed around Rockbridge County. She died in 1891, just a few years after she wished John well.

John left home

In 1885, at age 22, John left home and Rockbridge Baths.

His parents and sisters lived out their lives in Rockbridge County. James Miller Webb died in July 1881, at age 64. Margaret lived to age 86 in 1909.

His friend M.J. Parker gave him a Bible and a parting wish. This would be the Webb family Bible and record of births and deaths for the next two generations.

Anna Buhrer

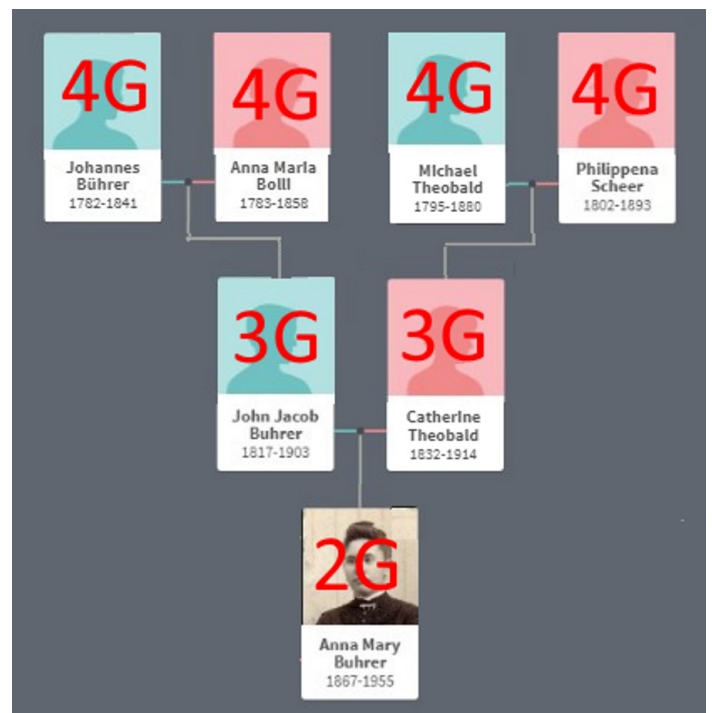

Anna Buhrer – c 1885

Ralph Jarvis married Chleo Webb. Chleo was born in 1900 on a farm south of Larned, Kansas.

Chleo's mother was Anna Buhrer.

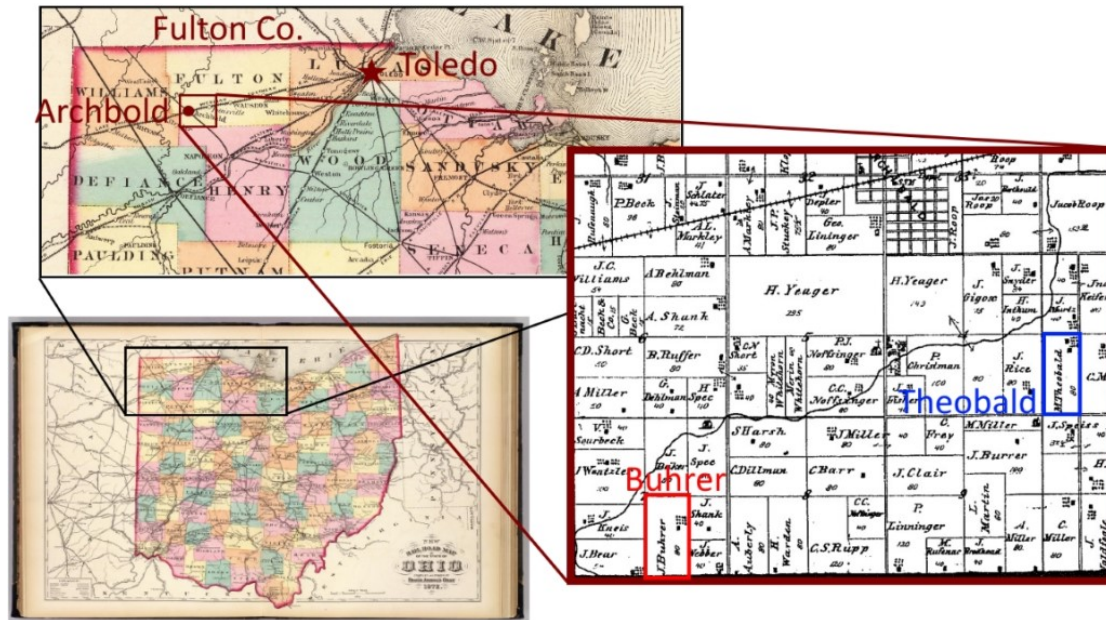

Anna Mary Buhrer (2G) was born Saturday, October 19, 1867, in Archbold, Fulton County, Ohio. Her parents were John Jacob Buhrer and Catherine Theobald Buhrer (3G).

Jacob Buhrer had come to Ohio in 1851 at age 34 from Bibern Valley, Scheffhausen, Switzerland in 1850. He settled near Archbold, Ohio, in Fulton County.

Stories of Our Jarvis Ancestors 1865-1920

Michael Theobald and Philipena Scheer Theobald (4G) came to Seneca County, Ohio, in 1835, and then moved to Fulton County in 1847. Their daughter Catherine was the second of eight children. She was born July 19, 1832. The Theobald's had a farm one mile southeast of Archbold.

Jacob Buhrer and Catherine Theobald were married in 1853. He was age 36 and she was 21.

Jacob and Catherine bought a farm in 1853 three miles west of the Theobald farm. There they farmed and raised their family.

Census — Jacob and Catherine Buhrer — Fulton County, Ohio — 1870

Family Nibbles

Anna Mary Buhrer was the 8th of 11 children. Philipena, the oldest, was born in 1854. Anna was born in 1867, and Valentine, the youngest in 1874. All the children were born in Archbold, in Fulton County, Ohio. Three of the children, John, Catherine, and Elizabeth died in infancy or childhood. The remaining eight children all lived into the mid-twentieth century.

Jacob and Catherine and family lived in Fulton County for 25 years. Here's their house in Ohio.

Buhrer house – Fulton County, Ohio – c 1875

From Ohio to Kansas

When Anna was eleven years old, in 1878, the Buhrer family sold out in Ohio and moved to Kansas.

Why pull up stakes after 25 years? I don't know. It must have been a significant reason or change in circumstances. Jacob was age 61, Catherine 46.

Whereas Ohio in 1878 was modern and populated, southwest Kansas was still on the frontier's edge.

Stories of Our Jarvis Ancestors 1865-1920

The Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad had reached Larned and the western border of Kansas in 1872. So the Buhrer's 1878 trip from Ohio to Kansas was made by railroad.

Larned, Pawnee County, Kansas

We're lucky to have Anna's recollection of their journey from Ohio to Kansas. She wrote some memories of her early days in Pawnee County that were published in the Larned newspapers in August of 1947.

Father and our family arrived in Larned in the spring of 1878, late in the night. The remainder of the night we sat in chairs in the Larned hotel.

During the morning John Richards and his father came and took us to their home until the men could unload the cars in to a two room house southwest of Larned.

Now the work begins...

The Buhrers were in Larned. Now they must build a place to live and a way to subsist. We'll see how they go about that in the next story.

Pawnee County, Kansas

We're fortunate to have two guest authors today.

In August 1947, the Larned Chronoscope, a local newspaper, published the recollections of sisters Anna Buhrer Webb and Lucy Buhrer Hays about their early days in Pawnee County.

Anna Buhrer – c 1887

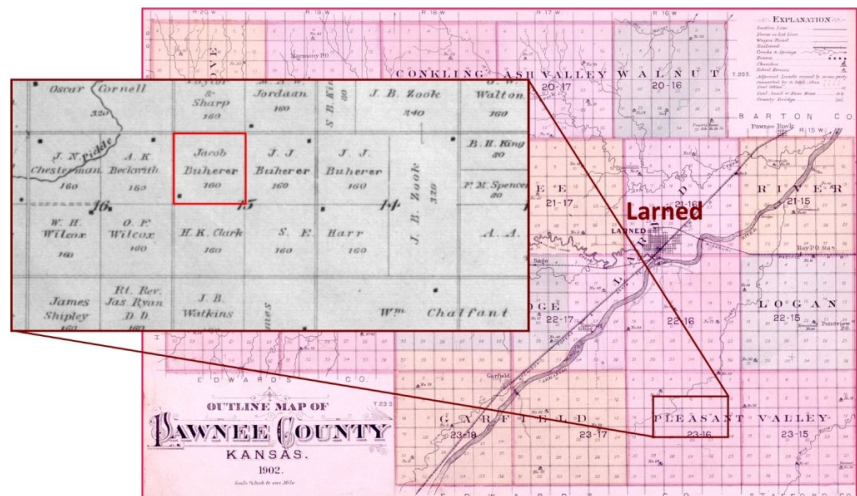

Lucy Buhrer – c 1889

If we told these stories, we'd be accused of embellishment. It's amazing to hear how our grandparents forged a life on the Kansas prairie.

In the last story, we heard how the Buhrers arrived on a train in the spring of 1878, with their horses and equipment arriving the next day on a freight train. The Richards family, an earlier neighbor in Ohio, took in the ten people of the Buhrer family to stay with them temporarily.

Jacob Buhrer had purchased Section 15 in Pawnee County, a square mile of unbroken land nine miles south of Larned, in Pleasant Valley Township. Now they would build a house and a farm and a life.

THE LARNED CHRONOSCOPE

101

Anna's recollections:

A house

Father built a frame house on his section one mile west and eight and one-half miles south of Larned. Father was a mason, so he built a nice basement kitchen and a cellar on the north, both of native stone. The cellar had a north window, the kitchen two east windows, and a large double window on the west, and a south door with stone steps going up to the porch, which had a stone wall two feet high on two sides, all open at the top.

Buhrer house – Pleasant Valley Township – Pawnee County, Kansas – c 1900

A barn

We had a sod horse barn, sod hen house, and a sod house for the brood sows, a long barn made of prairie blue stem and manure. The walls were two feet thick, with posts and walls on the side and large posts on the center and top. We got willows at the Arkansas River to put on top. Then a lot of prairie hay on top of that to turn the rain, then put wire hangers with stones on the ends to hold the roof on. The cows were on one side and the calves on the other. The barn had an east door and a south door. Nothing froze there during the blizzards.

A blizzard

A blizzard started the last night of 1885 and lasted three nights and three days.

Brothers Mike and Jake carried water for the stock out of a draw well with buckets on a rope on a pulley. They did milking during the blizzard. They wouldn't let mother go out during the storm.

Jacob Buhrer later walled up the room over the basement with native stone and plastered over the stone. This room and the attic area were used for bedrooms. The family's living room was in the basement kitchen.

Baking bread

We were snug and warm in our basement. We had a long table, one small and one large cupboard, a lounge, chairs, two benches, a dough tray three feet long that mother mixed her bread in, enough at a time for ten or twelve loaves of bread to last a week. She would put it on a shelf in the cellar and cover it with a cloth.

We also had a four hole cook stove that father would feed with corn stalks for mother to bake our bread.

In the spring we would go out on the prairie and pull up rosin weeds that were dead and press them into bunches to burn in the cook stove, and gather up buffalo chips to burn.

I wish I had a picture of the long ricks of chips I used to pick up to burn in the heating stove to keep us warm and in the cook stove to cook our meals and bake bread and cookies and pies.

"Them were the good old days."

Lucy's recollections:

The land

The land was unbroken so a team of oxen was purchased and sod broken and a wheat crop sowed. In the spring corn was planted. It grew abundantly, then the drought set in and the crops did not yield any grain. The corn was cut down by hand for feed. The drought lasted through '79 and into '80 and as a consequence father lost all but one quarter of his land, the NW 1/4 of Section 15, Township 23, Range 16.

Oxen and sod house – Kansas – c 1880

When it was too late the family realized that it would have been better to spend their money for cows than for a yoke of oxen. The next few years were difficult.

Most of the children worked for meager wages which were often pooled to keep the family going.

Neighbors

The pioneers were glad to help each other. Work was traded with the neighbors. Even the farm implements were loaned. One time when the family wanted to use the one horse sulkey rake it was finally located away down south on the Rattlesnake. The self rake reaper as well as the sulkey rake would indeed be novel implements today. The reaper would cut a small bundle of grain with a sweeping motion, which had to be tied by hand with a band of straw.

Wheat harvest in Pawnee County – 1880-1890

Firsts

The first child born was sister Caroline's son, Will Sigg, born in our home.

The first death was a Mrs. Richardson who was buried on the west bank of a large pond west of the old Harmony school site. The first burial in Pleasant Valley was for Jackie Blaine in the early '80s.

The first marriage was sister Philipena and Abner K. Beckwith.

School

The first school we attended was at Harmony, District 24, in the summer of 1878. Peter Qivier was a carpenter, and built the first Harmony school building, a frame one in 1878, and built the Pratt school house, also frame, in 1879.

Mrs. Carrie Conduitte, the wife of a doctor, who lived in the southeast part of the township taught the first term of school at Harmony in '78 for $21 per month.

These were three month terms. In these schools there were no desks at first. Books were kept under the homemade benches.

Green Valley School, Pawnee County, Kansas – 1893

Many of the pupils were nearly grown men and women. Many of them walked many miles to gain a bit of knowledge.

Sunday school

We attended Sunday School and preaching services in the Pratt school building until the Pratt church building was dedicated in 1912. Rev. William Bartle, a pioneer who lived where the Shapleys later lived was one of the first who preached in the old Pratt school house.

Socials

Our social affairs were spelling schools, parties in the homes where we played "Skip to my Lou, My Darling", "Down to Rowsers," etc. Also we had square dances in the old Dublin school in the southeast part of the township. The Frick boys, Charlie, Emil, Louis, and William came with their fiddles including the bass and furnished the music. The homemade benches were placed around the room against the wall.

Anna Buhrer's sister Caroline was twelve years older, born in 1855. Caroline had married Casper Sigg in Fulton County, Ohio. Casper and Caroline came to Pawnee County with the Buhrers in 1878. Their son, Will, was born there in December 1878.

In 1879, Caroline and Casper Sigg and their son Will moved to Dickinson County, Kansas.

Census – Caroline and Casper Sigg (and Buhrer families) – Dickinson County, Kansas – 1880

Family Nibbles

In Dickinson County, the Siggs were living next to several other Buhrer families, headed by Jacob and Elizabeth. These Buhrers were from Scheffhausen, Switzerland, just like our Buhrers. I haven't traced them further, but I'm guessing that this Jacob Buhrer is a brother of Caroline's father John Jacob Buhrer.

The Siggs lived in Liberty Township in Dickinson County, south of the small village of Chapman, Kansas, and about ten miles east of Abilene.

Dickinson County, Kansas – 1903

Anna Buhrer in Dickinson County

Around 1886, Anna Buhrer moved from Pawnee County to Dickinson County and into the household of her older sister Caroline Buhrer Sigg. I think Anna intended to find work in Abilene.

John Webb had arrived in Abilene around 1887. We don't know his first residence, or his first work.

John and Anna married

We don't know how John and Anna met. But on July 2, 1889, John Webb and Anna Buhrer were married by the Justice of the Peace in Abilene, Kansas.

Anna Mary Buhrer – Abilene, Kansas – c 1888*

The newspaper article that reports the marriage of John and Anna is from The Abilene Reflector, July 2, 1889. However, some of our family genealogy documents record the wedding date as July 2, 1888, a year earlier.

It's hard to believe that the newspaper would report a marriage one year later. Hmmmm.

Mistakes in genealogical records are common.

I don't have their marriage license. It would be the final authority. Read on...

They started a family

John and Anna's first child, Miriam Mayfield Webb, was born on October 19, 1889. She was called May. Was this four months after her parents' marriage? Or a year and four months?

October 19 was also Anna's birthday. She was born in 1867, twenty-two years earlier.

Miriam Mayfield Webb – Born October 19, 1889 – Webb Family Bible

Do you think May was born four months after John and Anna married? I'll leave that for another researcher.

The Westcott Ranch

By around 1889 or 1890, John Webb worked on the Westcott Ranch. His family lived in one of the ranch houses and John worked for J.H. Harman, the ranch superintendent.

J.M. Westcott was a wealthy industrialist from Richmond, Indiana. He owned the bank in Solomon, Kansas, in Dickinson County.

Westcott owned a huge ranch three miles south of Solomon. These 1887 and 1894 newspaper clippings evidence the huge size of the ranch:

- 3,500 and later 4,000 acres.
- 1,000 cattle
- 500 sheep
- 300 hogs
- 125 fancy draft horses

J. Harman, superintendent of the Westcott ranch, near Solomon, was in town Tuesday, and was one of the new subscribers who on that day joined the GAZETTE procession. Mr. Harman has been superintendent of the Westcott ranch over 15 years. The ranch contains 4,000 acres of first-class land, all under cultivation. The wheat crop on 800 acres this year is being threshed and averages 16 bushels to the acre; 1,000 acres of corn, a failure, will be cut up for "fodder." On the ranch are 125 head of Norman draft and French coach horses; cattle 200 head; Shropshire sheep 500, and 300 Poland China hogs. The ranch is one of the largest and most productive in the State, and Mr. Harman is one of the best superintendents.

Change in the Farmers' State Bank

Mr. J. M. Westcott, president of the Farmers' State bank, of Solomon City, has purchased all of Mr. C. H. Dewar's stock in said bank, thereby securing two-thirds of the capital stock, which is $50,000, fully paid up. Mr. Westcott owns a ranch of thirty-five hundred acres of choice land three miles southeast of Solomon City, highly improved and stocked with a herd of a thousand head of high bred cattle. Mr. Westcott resides at Richmond, Ind., and is the principal owner and president of the Hoosier Drill Co., of that place, and is financially responsible for a round million of dollars. This change makes the Farmers' State bank one of the strongest and most reliable financial institutions in the state. Mr. John L. Guy still remains as cashier.

Mr. C. H. Dewar retires for the purpose of engaging in other business pursuits, and goes with the best wishes of the bank for his future success.

John's mother Margaret and elder sister Virginia still lived in Rockbridge Baths, Virginia. John's father James had died in 1891.

John was going to be away for a month, so he and Anna arranged for Anna's younger brother Wally (Valentine) to come from Larned and stay with the family, and substitute work on the ranch while John was away.

John arrived back in Kansas just in time to help care for daughter Laura.

There's a family story that the Webb family moved from Dickinson County to Pawnee County in a wagon. I don't know if it's true, and I don't have evidence, so take it for what it's worth. But it's likely that old family stories have some element of truth.

It's about 160 miles, so it's not beyond the realm of possibility.

However they traveled, John and Anna and family arrived in Pawnee County in 1898 and set up on a 40 acre farm south of Larned in Pleasant Valley Township, very near Anna's parents and siblings and cousins.

Here's their farmhouse.

We know they had a team of oxen, because Cousin Rick Jarvis has their oxen yoke to this day.

Tragedy strikes

In January 1903, John contracted a serious case of tuberculosis. John died, at age 39.

The Larned Chronoscope – January 23, 1903

It's not fair

We've seen this happen so often in our family history. A spouse dies at a young age, leaving a single mother or father with children.

And we've often seen pneumonia and tuberculosis as the culprit.

No, it's not fair. But that didn't help the poor victim that suffered and died. And it didn't help the survivors that had a difficult time providing for a family as a single parent.

It's easy to take our modern health care and medicines for granted. These family stories remind us to be thankful that these diseases are much less fatal today.

Jacob Buhrer died too

In May 1903, just a few months after John Webb's death, Anna's father Jacob Buhrer died. He was age 86.

The Rock House

John Webb had died in January 1903.

Shortly after John died, Anna moved the family to the town of Larned. She decided she'd be better able to raise five children with a job in town instead of farming. She moved to the "Rock House."

The "Rock House" has an exalted position in family lore. We've all heard stories about it.

Anna Webb on bench in front yard of the rock house

Family events

The house was the center of Webb and Buhrer events in town for several decades. Some of Anna's nieces moved from their farms and lived in the rock house while attending high school in Larned. Anna's parents and siblings visited when they came into Larned.

Ralph Jarvis and Chleo Webb married and lived in the rock house. My father, Mel Jarvis, was born in the rock house.

And, of course, Anna's own children were raised in the rock house.

The history

The house was one of the earliest structures in the town of Larned. It had gunports, small openings for watching for danger and for rifle openings.

Early Day Homes Of Larned Vicinity

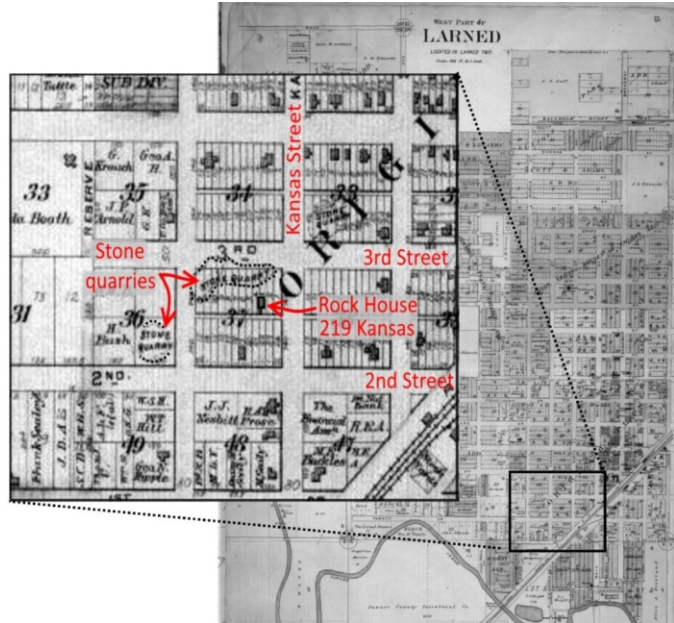

ABOVE is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cole at 219 Kansas Street. Built of native sandstone, the home was one of the first permanent structures to be constructed in Larned. It was equipped with gun ports to facilitate fighting hostile Indians.

The stone quarry

The rock for the foundations and walls was quarried on site, so the house was surrounded by the rock outcroppings.

On this 1902 map, you can see the location of the house and stone quarries. Anna bought the east half of block 37.

The quarry surrounding the north and west sides of the house must have been a great playground when the children were young. In later years, the quarry provided the backdrop for photos.

The gardens

Anna must have liked gardening, as there are lots of photos of the grounds around the rock house. Of notable fame are the iris beds. Several family members have iris today that came from the rock house.

The Rock House today

Sadly, the Rock House is gone. In a research trip to Larned, I explored the site. Parts of the foundation remain, a row of hand hewn rocks. The stone face of the old quarry remains on the north and west of the property.

Here's my imaginary reconstruction of the house.

Here's the location today on Google Maps.

A vintage, sepia-toned photograph of a group of people, likely a family, posed on the porch of a two-story house. There are five individuals in total, all wearing white dresses. Two women stand on the left side of the porch, while three others are seated on the right. The porch is supported by several white columns. To the left of the porch, two white wooden chairs are placed on the lawn. The house has a dark exterior and a balcony with a white railing on the upper floor. The overall tone is nostalgic and formal.

Let's review the family. Anna was age 38. All five of her children were still living at home – May, 16, Jim, 14, Myrtle, 12, Laura, 9, and Chleo, 4.

Did Anna ever smile?

While working on these series of stories, we were reviewing lots of photos. Cathy Jarvis asked me, “Did Anna Webb ever smile?”

Well, it did seem like there were lots of photos without a smile.

I remembered Anna (“Grandma Webb”) when I was a kid. I was age 7 when she died. And, no, I don’t remember her smiling.

I’m sure she smiled. It just wasn’t captured on a photo.

I tried an animation to see if I could get her to smile. Almost...

Chleo Webb

Chleo Webb (1G) had been born in 1900 on the farm south of Larned. She was the youngest of the five children.

Chleo Webb – age 1 - c 1901

Chleo Webb – age 7 - c 1907

Chleo grew up in the Rock House in Larned with her three older sisters and one older brother Jim. The age difference with her sisters was 5, 8, and 12 years. Jim was 9 years older.

Diphtheria

In 1907, Chleo contracted diphtheria. She was lucky.

Edith, the 7-year-old daughter of C. J. Webster, has been very ill with scarlet fever, and the entire family has been in quarantine as one result. Dr. Ewing is in attendance, and reports the little one improving.

The little 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Webb of the Third ward has been very ill the past week with diphtheria, necessitating the quarantining of the home. Dr. Ewing reports the child as much improved at this writing.

Diphtheria – a ghostly figure tries to strangle a diphtheria patient

Diphtheria (Corynebacterium diphtheriae), an acute bacterial infection spread by personal contact, was the most feared of all childhood diseases.

One of every ten children infected died from this disease. Symptoms ranged from severe sore throat to suffocation due to a 'false membrane' covering the larynx. The disease primarily affected children under the age of 5.

Until treatment became widely available in the 1920s, the public viewed this disease as a death sentence.

Deadly Diphtheria: the children's plague

Daily life

Chleo attended public school in Larned.

She worked at the laundry, attended school and Sunday School, and did chores at home.

By 1915, Chleo's sisters were married. So at age 15 she was the only child living at home.

Visits with their many relatives were always on the social agenda.

Loyal Bereans

Here are photos of Chleo's Sunday School class, the Loyal Bereans.

Chleo Webb – Loyal Bereans – 1914

The term Bereans is derived from the Bible's Book of Acts. It refers to the people of Berea, who were "more noble" than the Thessalonians, and accepted the Christian scripture. The Bereans studied the Bible daily to learn scripture, ostensibly more than other groups.

And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither went into the synagogue of the Jews. These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so

Acts 17:10,11

Many churches, sects, and bible study groups have adopted the term Berean.

In Larned newspapers, there were at least four churches with a Berean Sunday School class. The term "Loyal Bereans" was only found for the First Christian Church. So I think that was Chleo's Sunday School Bible Study class.

Chleo kept a postcard scrapbook. In it we can discover family tidbits that we can't get from censuses and land records. She also kept a scrapbook of magazine clippings of women's clothing styles and ads she liked. You'll notice in future stories how Chleo is a fashion maven.

Alex Rooney was Chleo's cousin, son of Anna's sister Christina Buhner Rooney and Otis Albert Rooney. They lived on the Rooney Ranch, which included part of Red Rocks park. The ranch once covered 4,400 acres. The ranch house is used today as a visitor's center. The ranch was founded by Alex's grandfather, Alexander Rooney, in 1860. The ranch passed to his father Otis, and then to Alex. We visited Alex at the ranch with my father in the 1960s.

Ralph Jarvis Was Electrifying

What was going on in Larned in the spring and summer of 1916? We'll pick up on three story lines to find out.

- Larned's new electric plant was coming online.
- Ralph Jarvis, 22, was in Larned, working as a lineman converting houses to the new electric system.
- Chleo Webb was coming of age at 16, living in the Rock House with her mother Anna.

Larned's Electricity 1914

The meeting of the city council in February 1914 is an important date in local history. The meeting is recorded as the time and place when the decisive step was taken towards giving the City of Larned the right to own its electric lighting system as well as water works.

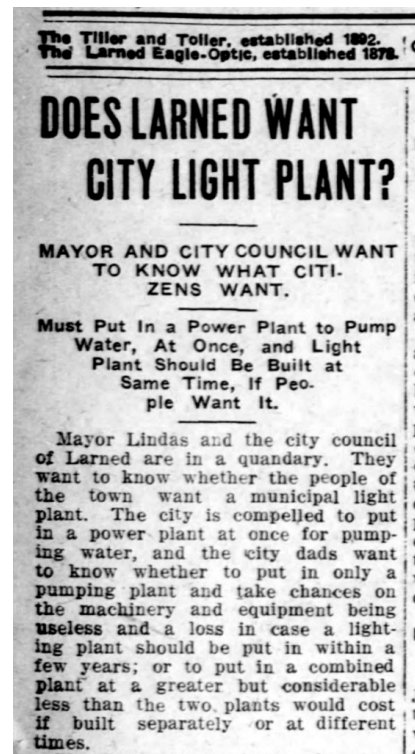

Larned's Public Power: Then & Now

Larned's citizens had voted for a municipal electrical plant, needing reliable power to pump the deep water well to supply the city's water.

Previously, some businesses and residences were supplied electricity by C. E. Smith Electric and Ice Company.

C. W. SMITH ELECTRIC AND ICE CO.

The Tiller and Toiler – January 16, 1914

The new Electric Plant

Larned's new municipal electric light and power plant was to be located on the Rahn lots at Main Street and Santa Fe Trail, facing the main line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad. The announcement was made January 1915. The city expected the new plant to be a sightly affair set in the middle of a park with trees, shrubs and grass surrounding it. Hence it was thought desirable to have it on the railroad, so that persons passing through Larned on the train could see it, thus obtaining advertising value from the plant.

Larned's Public Power: Then & Now

The C.E. Smith Electric and Ice Company filed a lawsuit. The city of Larned was usurping its customers and business. After a year of litigation and delays, Smith lost the lawsuit at the state Supreme Court, and the construction of the new electric plant commenced.

Engineer and Contractor

The engineers were Worley and Black of Kansas City.

In 1915, the Engineering News Record reported the reorganization of E.B. Black's previous firm, Worley & Black, under the name of Black & Veatch. In its first years, the new company employed 12 people and established an office in downtown Kansas City, Missouri.

Black and Veatch – Company History

The contractor was Taylor and McCoy, also from Kansas City.

AWARD MUNICIPAL PLANT.

Council Contracts for Light and Water Plant for $67,202.61.

The city council awarded the contracts for the building of the municipal light and water plant Monday and Tuesday of this week. The total cost of the plant and equipment, complete, with the exception of the white way poles, will be $67,202.61. The style of white way poles was not settled at the awarding of the other contracts, but will not exceed $1200, so that the modern municipal plant will come nicely under $70,000.

About fifteen months ago the citizens of Larned voted $90,000 worth of bonds to build a municipal light and water plant, the bonds carrying by a vote of nearly three to one. The city's engineers, Worley & Black of Kansas City, made up their plans and specifications for the new plant, making an estimate of the cost at $64,100.

Then followed an application for an injunction by the Smith Co., which they lost in the district court and appealed to the state supreme court, where the decision of the lower court was sustained. In this way a year's time was lost, and in the meantime the great European war had started and the price of all material had made a sharp advance, so that the engineers were compelled to revise their estimate of costs.

Larned Chronoscope - July 22, 1915

Planning the cut over

The electric plant was nearing completion in February 1916 and ready to test.

When the plant was complete, the “cut over” would begin, moving the service from the old C.E. Smith distribution network to the new city service.

Linemen were needed. Experienced linemen would handle the high tension wires. Less experienced linemen would dismantle the old system of wires and poles.

At the meeting of the city council Monday night, S. W. Pierce was employed to superintend the cutting over

Ralph Jarvis was in Salina in February

R. H. Jarvis, a roomer at the Y. M. C. A., was taken to St. John's hospital for treatment today. Mr. Jarvis is suffering from a relapse after an attack of the mumps

The Salina Evening Journal – February 19, 1916

Ralph Jarvis was in Kansas. We first find him in Salina, Kansas in February 1916, where he was hospitalized for relapse of mumps. He was rooming at the YMCA.

Was he working in Salina? Was he working as a lineman? Unfortunately, we don't know.

The Electric Plant is complete!

On Tuesday, April 18, 1916, Larned took possession of its new electric plant. That evening, the new plant supplied electricity to the town.

But the cut over for the residential areas of town was yet to be done.

The city would run distribution lines up the alleys, where the old system had poles and wire in the streets. Then, each house would have to wire incoming service from the alley lines instead of the street lines.

The experienced linemen would run the poles and wires through the alleys. Less experienced linemen would dismantle the poles and wires in the streets.

Then the homeowner could arrange for the city or a private contractor to change the service from the new system to their house.

In April, Ralph Jarvis is in Larned

Mrs. Anna Mounts has received a letter informing her that her son, Ralph Jarvis, was in a hospital at Larnard, Kans., suffering with pneumonia.

Greensburg News – April 28, 1916

In April 1916, two months after we found Ralph in Salina, he was in Larned. In late April, he was hospitalized with pneumonia.

Ralph's a lineman

Ralph was working on the project to cut over the residential areas of Larned to the new electrical system.

We don't know if he was one of the experienced linemen or if he was learning the trade by demolishing the old system. But by the end of the project, he was likely an experienced lineman. He would work in this industry for the rest of his career.

In the July 1916 list of expenditures for Pawnee County, Ralph is paid $29.00 for "outside wiring", as are several others. I think "outside wiring" means the new connection between the city distribution lines and a resident's house. He was probably contracting or moonlighting by hooking up houses to the new system.

Finally, Ralph Jarvis meets Chleo Webb

As the story goes, Ralph was working on a utility pole near the Rock House. There was a young lady on the porch. Ralph whistled at her, and she waved back. That young lady was Chleo Webb.

Here's the same story from Webb/Jarvis archives. I'll attribute this one to Doris Gibson, wife of Abner Gibson. Doris was sister-in-law of Phyllis Gibson Jarvis, who was wife of Don Jarvis. Don was Mel Jarvis' brother, and these two were sons of Ralph Jarvis and Chleo Webb Jarvis. Doris did a lot of family genealogy.

Co. in Larned, Kansas when he met Chleo Webb. He was a lineman and was up on a pole working, when Chleo went out on the porch of her parents home and he whistled at her and she waved.

Chleo went to a Sunday School party with a friend, and the friends boyfriend had invited Ralph. Ralph ask to walk Chleo home, and the romance began. He soon gave her a diamond necklace, and she was the only girl in the Senior Class with a diamond.

So the romance began. But Chleo was age 16, and still in high school. And Ralph's life would be interrupted by a stint in the army in World War I.

In 1916, Ralph Jarvis had met Chleo Webb and started a relationship. At 16, Chleo was still in high school. Ralph, 22, was working as a lineman.

So a National Guard enlistee could count on being sent to the front soon.

137th Infantry

The 137th Infantry Regiment (First Kansas) traces its history back to the 1st Infantry Regiment of the Kansas Volunteer Militia on 17 May 1879.

Kansas Army National Guard

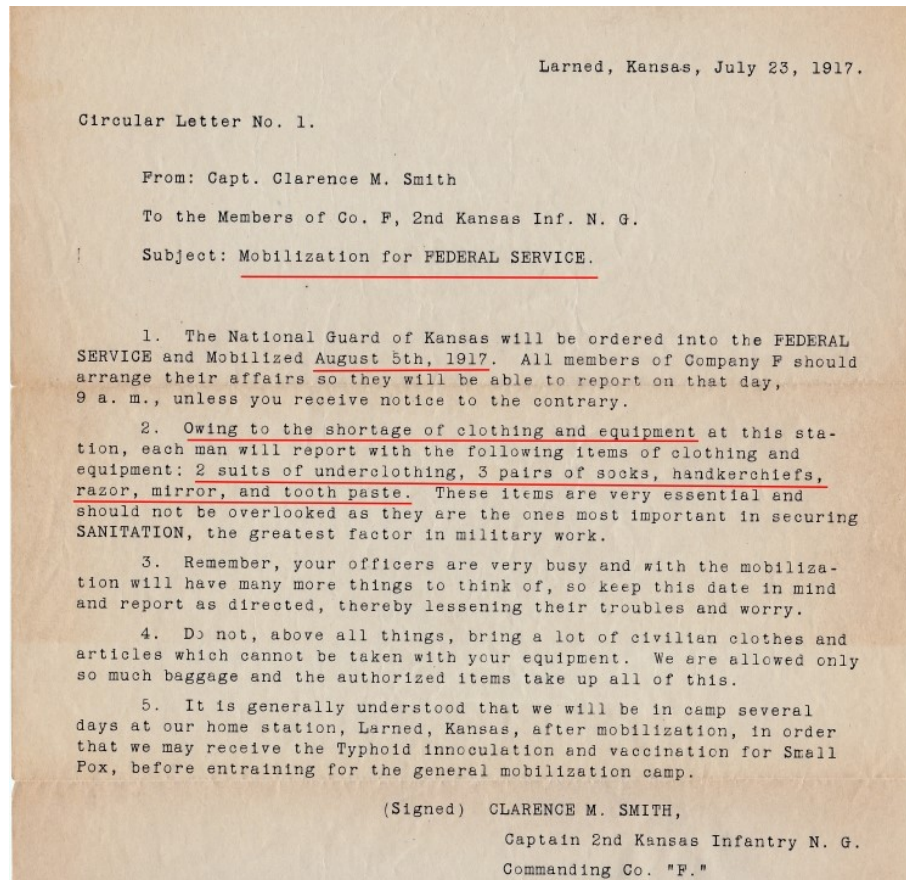

In 1885, this volunteer militia became the Kansas National Guard.

In 1898, the 1st Kansas was merged with the 20th Kansas and deployed to the Philippines in the war with Spain. A few years later, in 1916, the regiment was mustered into federal service for duty on the Mexican border.

On August 5, 1917, the 1st and 2nd Kansas Infantry regiments were drafted into federal service and joined the 35th Division. On October 1, the two regiments were merged into the 137th Infantry Regiment.

On August 5, 1917, the members of Company F in Larned reported for active duty.

Two months later, on September 29, Company F from Larned arrived. Camp Doniphan was a huge tent camp, located adjacent to the permanent army base at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

The regiment landed at Liverpool, England, May 6, and crossed the English Channel to Le Havre on May 9. It had been a year since they had enlisted. They were in France and would soon go “into the line.”

Over There

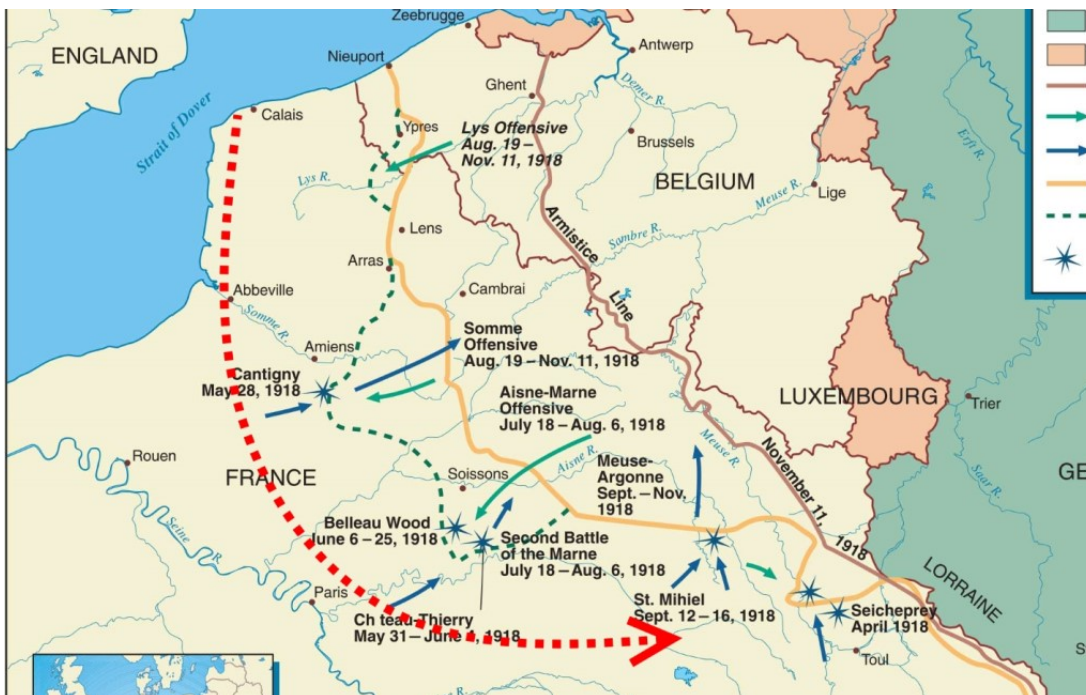

On May 9, 1918, soldiers of the 137th Infantry disembarked their ships and set foot on French soil at Le Havre.

The 137th served a few weeks with the British in Northern France and then by three days of forced marches and three days train travel moved to the eastern end of the Western Front, near Gerardmer, from where it went into the line with French troops on German soil near Switzerland on June 18, 1918.

The Signal Platoon

Ralph Jarvis was in the signal platoon of Headquarters Company.

The signal platoon was the communication heartbeat of the regiment. Its purpose was to build and maintain communications between the combat units and the command headquarters. During protracted and moving battles, the signal corps would need to continually move wiring and equipment to forward positions.

Successful communications systems could determine the outcome of a battle. Failure of communications had lethal consequences. Here's the signal platoon's organizational structure.

137th Infantry – Signal Platoon

There were multiple and overlapping communication methods. Let's take a closer look.

Signal Platoon Roster - 137th Infantry

The signal platoon was responsible for five communication methods.

Lamps, Flags

Yes, lamps and flags were often the most surefire way to signal a message. If radio or telephone hadn't been brought forward to the fighting line, visual messages were sent by flags during daylight and lamps during darkness.

Visual signaling had likewise not entirely disappeared from the Signal Corps' arsenal. The familiar red and white wigwag flags remained in use to a limited extent, but the flagstaff underwent some changes. Since the wooden staffs broke rather easily, the Corps contracted with a fishing rod company to manufacture steel staffs.

Getting the Message Through

Signal flagmen

Pigeons

Yes, pigeons. Though a one-way method, pigeons were a reliable way to send messages back to regimental command.

Carrier pigeons contributed another "low-tech" but effective means of communication. In July 1917, impressed with the French and British pigeon services, Pershing requested that pigeon specialists be commissioned into the U.S. Army.

Cher Ami - American Museum of Natural History - Smithsonian

Probably the most famous use of pigeons occurred during the fighting in the Argonne Forest in October 1918 when elements of the 77th Division, commanded by Maj. Charles W Whittlesey, became separated and trapped behind the German lines.

After several days without relief, with hope for survival fading and friendly artillery fire raining down, the men pinned their lives on their last bird, Cher Ami, to get word back to silence the guns. With one eye gone, his breast bone shattered, and a leg missing, Cher Ami completed his mission. In recognition of his remarkable accomplishment, Cher Ami received a medal and a pension.

Getting the Message Through

Fireworks

This is a method of “broadcasting” a signal for all to see over long distances.

Other visual signaling methods included pyrotechnics (rockets, flares); battery-powered electric lamps, based on a French model, to replace the previously used acetylene type; and projector lamps.

Getting the Message Through

Buzzer / Telephone

The buzzer phone, an improvement on the British Fuller phone, could be used to transmit buzzer signals or act as a normal telephone. The advantage of this telephone was the fact buzzer signals could be transmitted between two telephones of this type with no possibility of interception by the enemy.

The Waving of Flags and Torches

Buzzer / Telephone

In general, from division headquarters forward, telephone lines ran to each infantry battalion as well as between adjoining battalions. But the traditional lance poles did not prove suitable for use in the trenches. Instead, the wires were strung on short (four-foot) stakes or run along the trench walls.

At division headquarters the telephone switchboards were installed in underground dugouts where they could withstand artillery bombardment.

Getting the Message Through

Radio, T.P.S. Panels

Ralph was assigned to the regimental company. He had been promoted to Corporal. He was responsible for radio and T.P.S. systems, and he was also in command of the 1st Battalion Signal Detail.

So Ralph's responsibilities were at the battle front. His crews had to install the T.P.S. ground stakes in the front trenches.

*The Signal Corps procured French earth telegraphy equipment known as T.P.S., from the French word telegraphie par sol (the British used the term earth induction). This system worked by each station laying insulated wire (up to seventy-five meters) along the ground, parallel to one another and grounding each end of the wire with iron spikes driven into the ground. The transmitting station connected in the center of the wire a battery-powered telegraph induction set, which sent a powerful buzzer signal over the wire. The receiving station had a similar length of wire with a telephone receiver attached to pick up the transmissions. The system worked up to three kilometers apart. This system was excellent near the front lines because it had less wire to be torn by artillery and mortar fire.*

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE U.S. ARMY SIGNAL CORPS

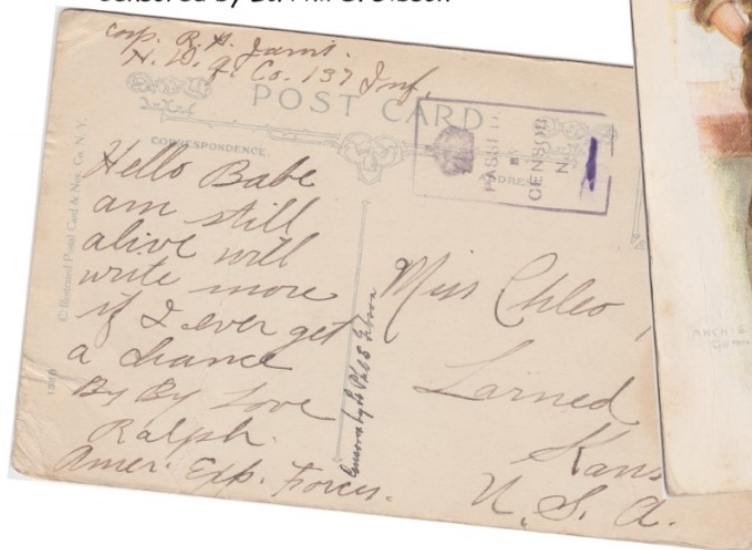

During the battle the signal troops went “over the top” close behind the advancing infantry. The repair teams sustained many casualties, however, due to heavy concentrations of poison gas. While the enemy repeatedly knocked the division’s telephones and radios out of action, the earth telegraphy stations remained in operation.

Getting the Message Through

There were other communications methods that weren't under the auspices of the signal platoon. These included messengers, runners, motorcycle couriers, balloons, airplanes, etc.

Battle of St. Mihiel

The St. Mihiel battle was the first major battle organized and fought completely by the American Expeditionary Force. You might recall that this is the battle in which Ben Teply was wounded. See his story in an earlier post – Ben Teply – WWI – St. Mihiel Salient.

On September 1, the 137th regiment was moved by trucks to Nancy and then into reserve for the St. Mihiel drive of mid-September.

That battle was so easy that the Reserve was never used, and the men lay in their pup tents in the soggy dripping woods, without even a chance to see the enemy, though under shellfire.

Meuse-Argonne Offensive

The Division was moved by some two hundred French trucks from their reserve at St. Mihiel to the neighborhood of Grange-le-Conte, in the woods east of Beauchamp, and remained there until the morning of September 26th, when the greatest battle in American military history, the Battle of the Argonne, commenced.

The artillery preparations began at 2:30 a.m., September 26th. On the afternoon previous the infantry had begun the move forward, and that night were up to the guns and awaiting the coming advance in the morning. After three hours of intense artillery preparation, the advance began at 5:30 a.m.

History of Kansas: State and People, Volume II

A 6-hour barrage was launched on this hill and was taken by the Kansas soldiers in their first attempt on 26 September, and their trial by fire began; an ordeal that was to last six days and six nights, with little or no food, only snatches of sleep, and an uninterrupted rain of shells, gas, and bullets from infantry, artillery and warplanes. The 137th Infantry took every objective assigned it, but in the taking suffered casualties of nearly 1,300 men out of the 2,800 combatants engaged; 46%

A History of the 137th Infantry, An All-Kansas Regiment

The regiment was relieved October 1, 1918, and after resting in the rear for 10 days, the regiment moved to Verdun and remained in the fighting until November 9.

The Armistice

The Armistice of November 11, 1918 finally stopped the fighting.

When the Division received the word of the armistice, orders were sent out immediately to the battalions by whatever means possible – T.P.S., radio, phone, flag, pigeon, courier, runner, etc. Troops were ordered to stop firing at 1045 to avoid mistakes.

And so it was that the guns fell silent on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918.

Troops celebrate the Armistice – November 11, 1918

For more background and information on the Armistice, see an earlier story – Ben Teply – WWI – The Armistice!

Army of Occupation

After the Armistice, the 137th would participate in the occupation of Germany, and stay in Europe for six more months. The troops were granted furloughs and had some time to explore their surroundings in France.

Too many casualties

The official report shows that there were some 1,480 deaths, 6,001 wounded, and 167 captured, making a grand total of 7,913 men (46%). This loss, while not an excessive one, was mostly sustained in the one battle of the Argonne, where the losses were heavy.

It may well be and is probable that the division did not have the best leadership possible and that it could have done its job with fewer casualties if its leadership had been different, but certainly the Division, itself, has no cause to be ashamed of its achievements, or of the gallantry of its officers and men.

History of Kansas: State and People, Volume II

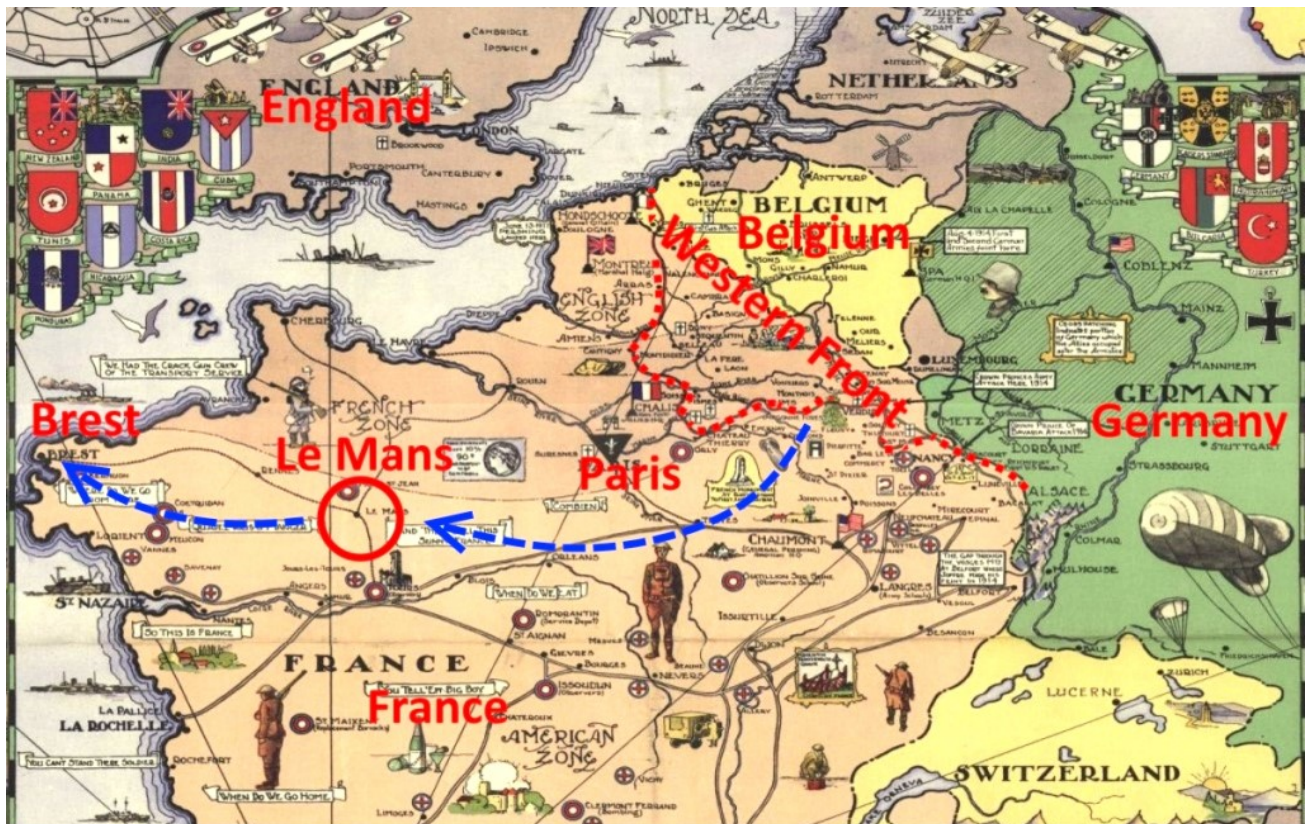

Through a variety of means, the Signal Corps successfully supplied communications to the front lines, and its casualty figures reflected that fact. Its total of 2,840 casualties ranked second only to the Infantry. This figure is particularly impressive because the Signal Corps (less its Aviation Section) comprised only about 4 percent of the total AEF

Coming Home

With orders for home, the 137th Regiment boarded trains at Sampigny on March 7. They arrived in the Le Mans area three days later. The companies were dispersed to surrounding towns and villages, Company M to Monfort-les-Gesnois. Far from the desolate battlefields, the men enjoyed a couple weeks of "the best accommodations since [their] arrival in France," whether in billets or private homes.

Family Nibbles

Following this respite, they moved to what was known as “the Belgian Camp,” where they slept in tents and were subjected to medical examinations, inoculations, and “cootie baths” to make them presentable to their mothers.

April 4, an overnight train from Champagne took the regiment to the coast at Brest, France’s westernmost port. After a week’s wait in cantonment, a morning march, loaded with all their gear, took them to the docks. From there, they were conveyed by light boats to a transport ship anchored a mile out in the bay. France, as its final farewell, drizzled rain on them.

A visit to Indiana, and Mother

Before Ralph returned to Larned, he made a trip to Indiana to visit his mother, Anna Burton Jarvis Mounts Stafford. Anna was living in Anderson, Indiana with her husband Samuel Stafford.

Ralph's grandmother, Eliza Burton, was still living in Greensburg, Indiana. It seems Ralph visited her too, for he sent a postcard with a picture of the famous courthouse tree.

Hello Chleo

Received 2 letters from you this morning. Will be home soon, by Sun. night if possible. Things are sure dead here.

Larned at last

At last, Ralph was home in Larned. It had been a year and three-quarters since Company F had shipped out. Ralph was glad to be home. Chleo was glad he was there. They would take up their relationship once again.

Chleo Webb and Ralph Jarvis – 1919

Ralph Jarvis and Chleo Webb

Ralph was back in Larned, and out of the army. It was the summer of 1919. He quickly found work as a lineman for The Pawnee Power and Water Company.

Chleo had just finished high school. She was living at home with her mother, and they were working at the Ideal Steam Laundry.

Ralph and Chleo rekindled their relationship and talked of marriage.

Ralph and Chleo – 1919

Marriage

Webb-Jarvis.

Miss Cleo S. Webb and Mr. Ralph H. Jarvis were quietly married at the home of Probate Judge Stockman on Tuesday evening, Dec. 16th, the ceremony being read by Judge Stockman.

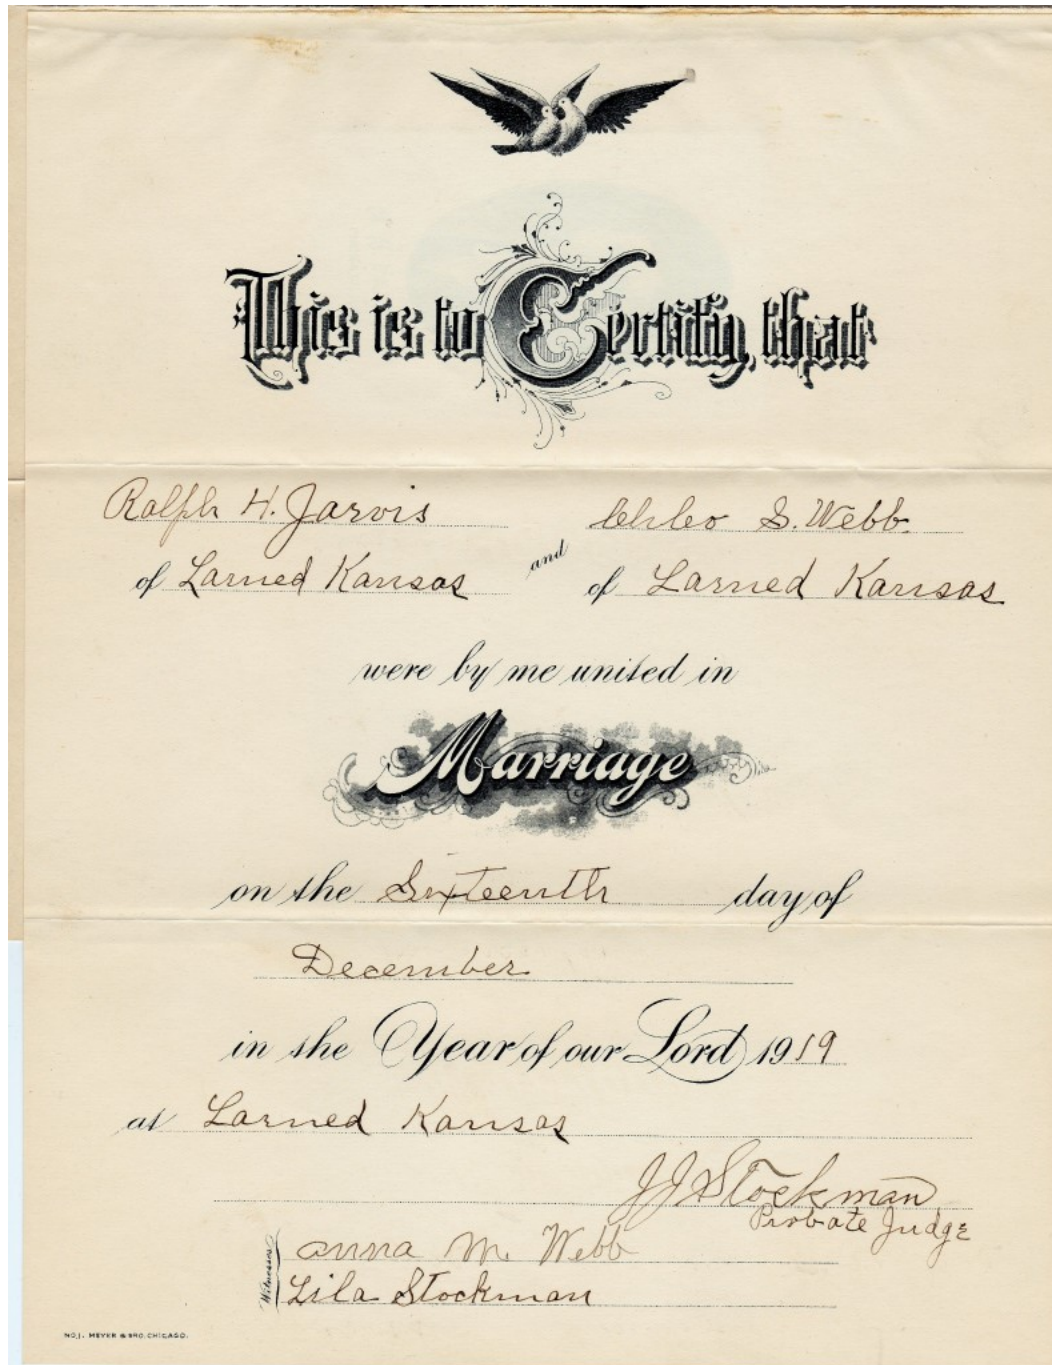

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. W. Webb, and has made her home in Larned since childhood. The groom enlisted with Co. F of Larned at the time war was declared on Germany, and served in France with Headquarters Co., 137th Infantry.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis will make their home with the bride's mother in Larned.

Larned Chronoscope – December 18, 1919

Ralph Jarvis and Chleo Webb married December 16, 1919.

They had met in summer of 1916, when Ralph whistled at Chleo from a utility pole. Now, three and a half years later, they married.

Ralph and Chleo were married Dec. 16, 1919 at the Probate Judge in Larned, Kansas. They returned home after their wedding to find her mother had made a big pot of Oyster Stew for everyone.

A diamond necklace

Recall an earlier story about how Ralph met Chleo, and how he gave her a diamond necklace.

Chleo went to a Sunday School party with a friend, and the friends boyfriend had invited Ralph. Ralph ask to walk Chleo home, and the romance began. He soon gave her a diamond necklace, and she was the only girl in the Senior Class with a diamond.

Story of Chleo's diamond necklace – Doris Gibson

I think the necklace Chleo is wearing in the wedding photo is that diamond necklace. She's wearing the same necklace in some other photos.

Will live with Chleo's mother

"Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis will make their home with the bride's mother in Larned."

Chleo and Ralph moved in with Anna Webb in the Rock House. There may have been one of Anna's nieces living with her while going to high school in Larned, but otherwise only Anna lived there. So there was plenty of room.

Ralph was working out of town

After returning from military duty, Ralph went to work as a lineman for the Pawnee Power and Water Company. The company was stringing transmission lines to dozens of small towns in western Kansas. So Ralph was away from Larned during the work week.

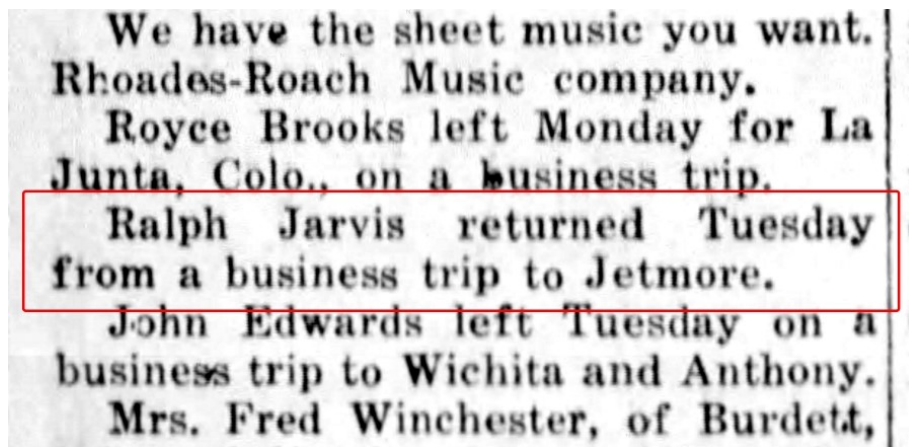

Ralph soon rose to foreman, so he was responsible for several of the line crews. He was constantly traveling to the jobs.

During the week, Chleo and Anna were working at the Ideal Steam Laundry.

There were lots of Chleo's relatives nearby for visiting. Whether crocheting, sewing, or playing football, life was back to normal in small-town Larned.

At last, after a period of fifteen years, Larned is now enabled to take pleasure and pride in a real football team. The Walter S. Cheers Post of Larned has demonstrated that clean amateur football can be a source of pleasure and profit. The local post is indebted to the Larned Business Men's Association for their financial cooperation in making the team possible through a donation of the football equipment.

The first game of the season was played at Cimarron and resulted in a loss to Larned by a score of 14 to 0. That game was played under considerable difficulty, as it was hard to get a team in shape for such a strenuous game on such short notice. The second game, played at Larned two weeks ago, was with Hoisington, and Larned demonstrated the effects of intensive training by capturing the contest by the top heavy score of 30 to 0.

The Larned team line-up for the game was as follows:
Center, Fred Evans.
Right guard, Boyd Eiffert.
Left guard, "Blackie" Jarvis.
Right tackle, Jake Coleson.
Left tackle, "Arsenic" Williamson.
Right end, Chet Webb.
Left end, Bill Kenoyer.
Right half, Jim Miller.
Left half, Don Hare.
Full back, Wylie Compton.
Quarter back, Glen Augustus.
Substitutes—Left guard, "Alabam" Taylor; right half, Jack Kennedy.

Ralph and Chleo would soon add children to their family. Ralph would get swept up in the fortunes and misfortunes of the Pawnee Power and Water Company. And they would soon move away from Larned.

A Look Back

We began this series of stories after the Civil War in 1865. We're ending the series at the end of World War I in 1920. What a dramatic change in people's lifestyles over these 55 years.

Let's review...

Reconstruction after Civil War – 1865

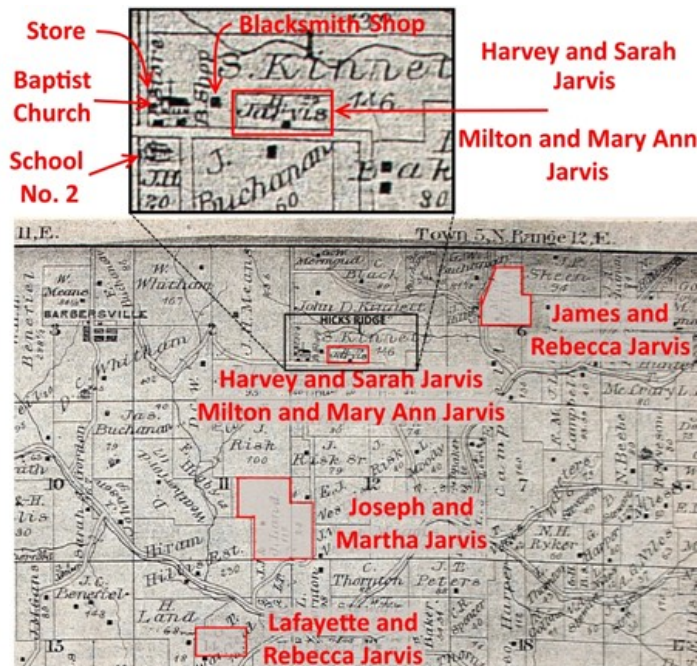

Armistice – World War I – 1918

Harvey Jarvis and Sarah Robinson (4G)

Harvey and Sarah Jarvis lived long lives. By the end of the Civil War, they were living in the times of railroads, steamboats, and telegraph systems. Their sons, James, William, Joseph, Lafayette, and Milton lived nearby and raised their families.

Harvey Jarvis and Sarah Robinson had been born in the Kentucky backwoods in 1803. Their families made their clothing, their houses, and their food.

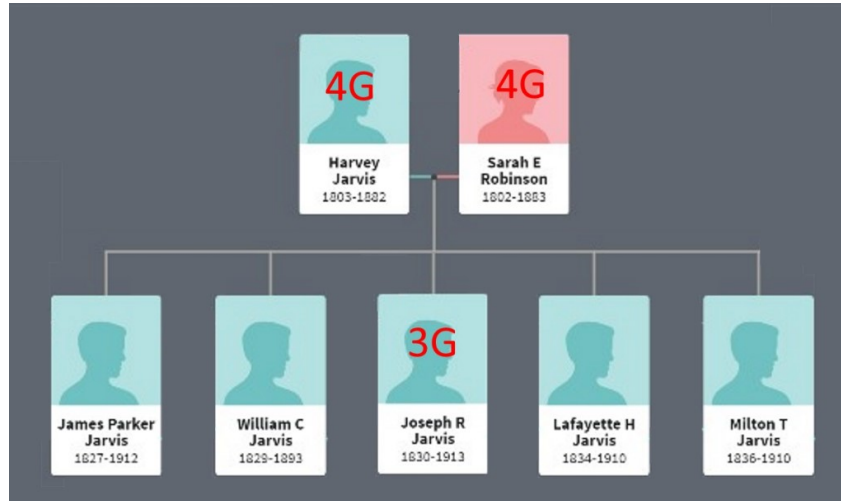

Harvey and Sarah moved to southern Indiana in the 1820s, following the calling of cheap and plentiful farmland. Harvey also found work as a mason, a long-lived family trade.

Harvey and Sarah Jarvis and their sons' families – 1860s-1870s

Harvey and Sarah lived in Jefferson and Ripley Counties, the epicenter of Jarvis family life for three generations.

They died within a year of each other, in 1882 and 1883.

Harvey Jarvis and Sarah Robinson

Joseph Jarvis and Martha Buchanan (3G)

Joseph and Martha Jarvis were living in Jefferson County, Indiana at the end of the Civil War. Joseph had been a member of the Indiana Militia during the war and had served as a guard at Camp Morton, a prisoner of war camp.

Joseph was the third son of Harvey and Sarah Jarvis, born in 1830 in Ripley County, Indiana.

Martha Buchanan Jarvis was born and raised in one of the earliest settler families in southern Indiana. She married Joseph in 1852.

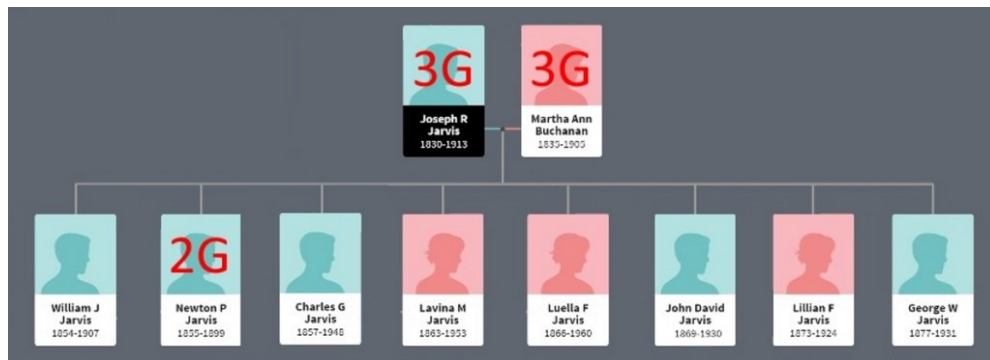

Joseph and Martha had moved around, trying both farming and mason work. After the war, the economy of southern Indiana suffered. They moved to Ohio County, and finally to Rising Sun, Indiana. In Rising Sun, Joseph worked as a mason.

Family Nibbles

Martha died in 1905 in Rising Sun at age 69. After her death, Joseph moved to Cincinnati to live near his daughters Luella and Lavinia. He lived until 1913, age 82.

Joseph Jarvis and Martha Buchanan

Newton Jarvis (2G) and Sarah Beaty

At the end of the Civil War, Newton Jarvis was age 10. He was living with his parents Joseph and Martha in Jefferson County, Indiana. He'd been born in 1855, the second of eight children.

By the mid-1870s, Newton moved east with his family to Ohio and Switzerland Counties. In 1879, Newton married Sarah Beaty. Sarah was born in 1858 in Jefferson County, the sixth of ten children. Her parents Elijah and Sarah moved around southern Indiana and ended up in Switzerland County, near where Newton was living.

Newton and Sarah had two daughters, Arminta in 1879 and Myrtle in 1884.

In spring 1887, Sarah was overcome with consumption (tuberculosis). She died on June 2. Newton was a single parent with two young daughters.

Widower with two daughters

Newton Jarvis and Anna Burton (2G)

In 1889, Newton married Anna Burton. Anna was age 19. She was 14 years younger than Newton, who was 33.

Over the next ten years, they had four children.

Family Nibbles

Newton Jarvis and Anna Burton

Newton caught pneumonia from his son Ralph. He died at 5 am on Tuesday, April 4, 1899. Now Anna was left a single parent with four children. She chose to move into her mother's household in Greensburg, Indiana.

Anna's parents were George and Eliza Burton (3G). They had lived in Rising Sun. That's where Anna met Newton. They later moved to Greensburg. George died in 1897 at age 62. Eliza Burton was still living in 1920 at the end of this series of stories.

In 1901, Anna married Harrison Mounts. Between 1901 and 1908, they had three sons – Lillard, Alva, and Robert. Harrison died in 1911, and Anna was once again a single parent with children.

Ralph Jarvis (1G)

Ralph Hayden Jarvis was born August 16, 1894 in Sugar Branch, Switzerland County, Indiana. He was the 3rd child of Newton and Anna Jarvis.

Ralph, his two brothers Elmer and Tom, and his three step-brothers grew up in Greensburg. His sister Opal had died at age 3 in 1902.

Ralph grew up at 1201 N. Broadway, Greensburg, Indiana

Chleo Webb (1G)

Chleo Webb was born August 21, 1900 on a farm south of Larned, Kansas.

We met her parents John Webb and Anna Buhrer (2G). John's family was from Rockbridge Baths, Virginia. Anna's family came to Larned from Fulton County, Ohio.

John and Anna met in Abilene, Kansas. They married and started a family while John worked on a ranch south of Solomon, Kansas. In 1898, they moved to Larned to be near Anna's extended family.

John Wesley Webb – c 1887

Anna Mary Buhrer – c 1888

Stories of Our Jarvis Ancestors 1865-1920

In 1903, John Webb died of tuberculosis. Anna became a single parent with five children. She moved from the farm into the Rock House in Larned.

Ralph Jarvis and Chleo Webb (1G)

Chleo Webb and Ralph Jarvis - c 1917

At age 22, Ralph was working as a lineman in Larned in 1916. He met Chleo, 16, while working on a utility pole next to the Rock House.

Over the next three years, Ralph and Chleo built a relationship. World War I interrupted their lives for two years. In December 1919 they married.

Now, in 1920, Ralph and Chleo are married and living in the Rock House with Anna Webb. Ralph is working as a lineman for Pawnee Power and Water Company.

A peek into the future

Our next series of family stories will pick up in 1920.

Ralph and Chleo will have children. Melvin, the eldest, will be born in 1921. He's our grandfather.

Ralph will play an important role in the development of the power company as he follows its entrepreneurial founder, Nathan Jones. But the company will have failures as well as successes.

We'll see what happens to Eliza Burton, Ralph's grandmother. Ralph's mother Anna Burton Jarvis Mounts will marry once again and move to Kansas. Ralph's brother Tom and step-brother Robert show up in Kansas.

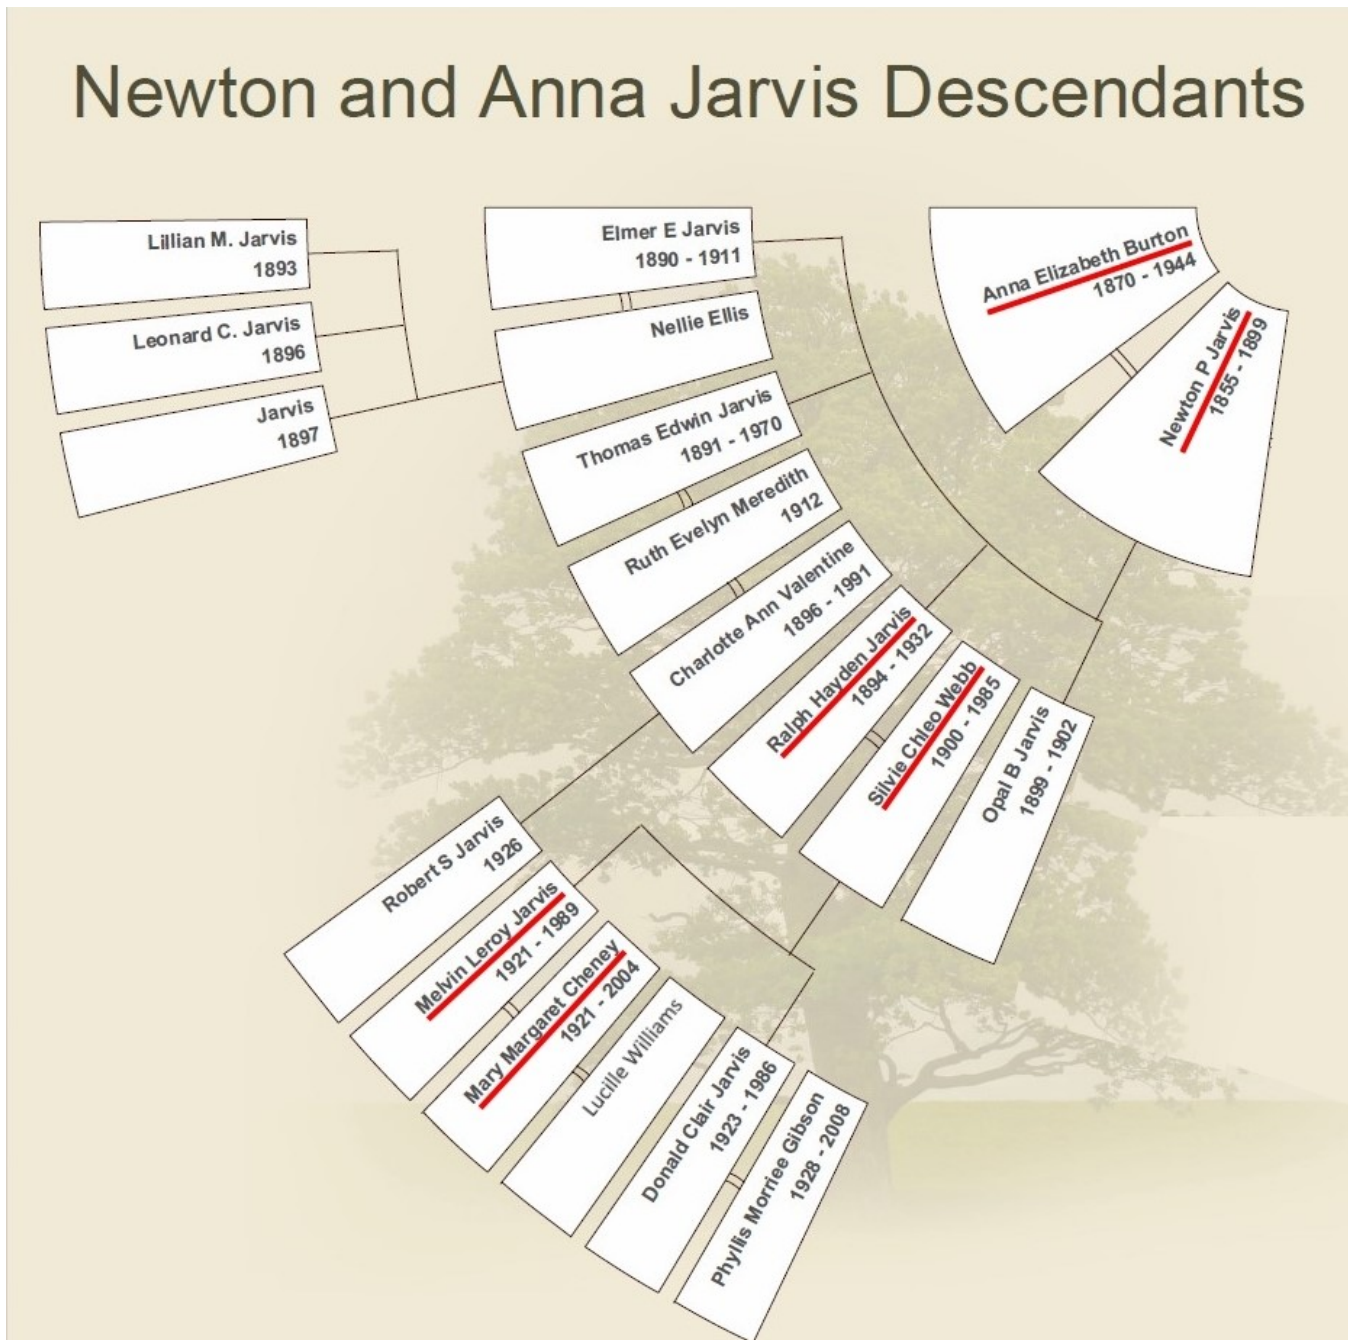

Chleo's mother Anna Webb will come to live with Chleo.

And another family will leave a single parent to raise the children.

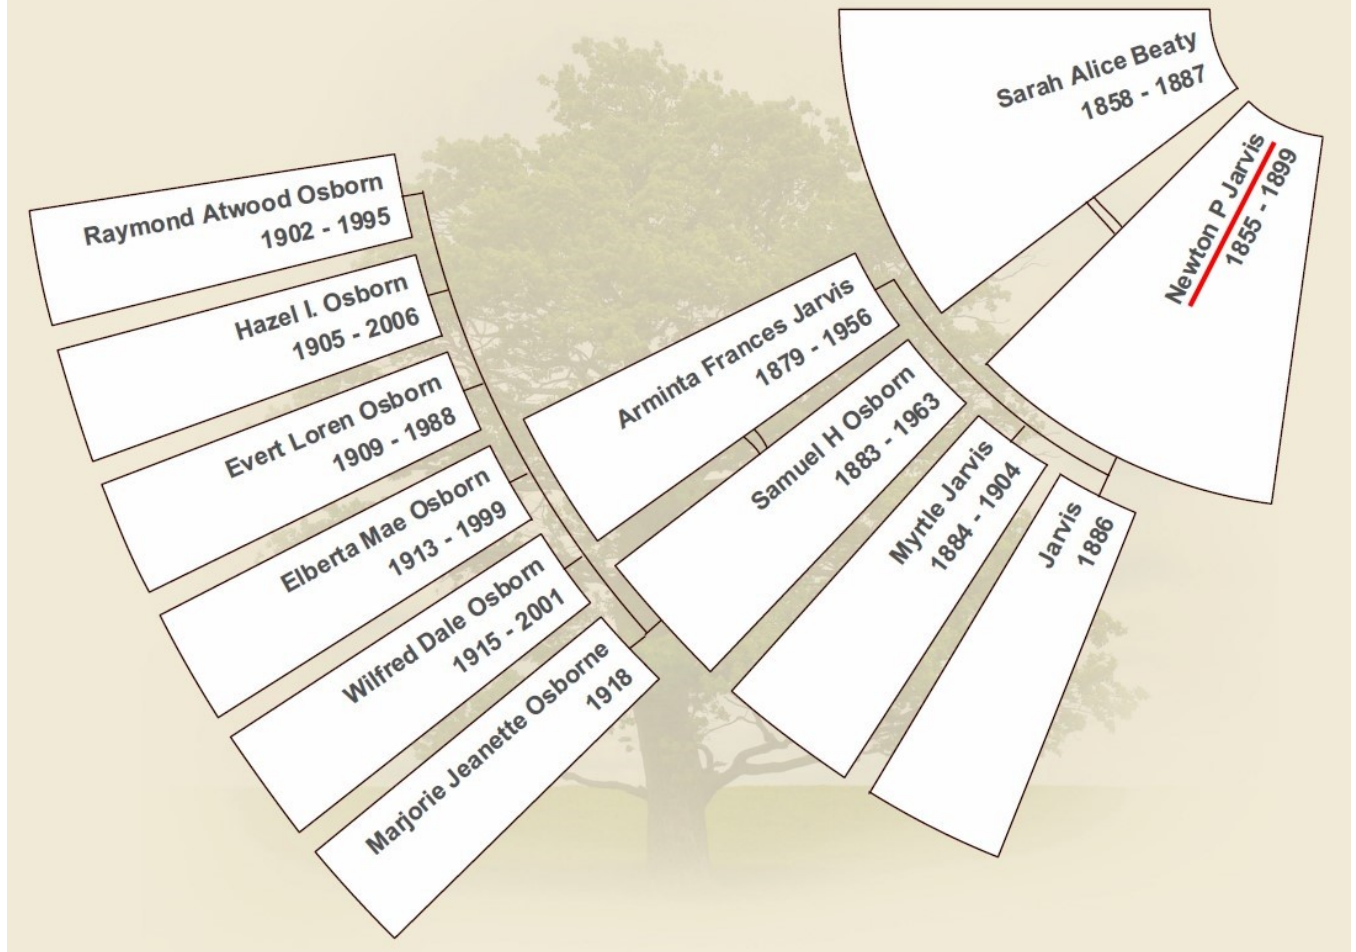

Stay tuned.

About the Author

I'm Mark Jarvis. My wife is Cathy Teply Jarvis.

Cathy and I have always had a soft spot for old family photos, mementos, furniture pieces, etc. Our home displays lots of these mementos, including an ancestor photo wall.

Since I retired in 2014, I've spent many hours chasing our Jarvis and Teply ancestors.

We have a trove of family information and stuff. And we'd like to share it.

You can also find these stories on familynibbles.com.
